ITALY DECLARES WAR ON GERMANY

NAZI AIR FORCE ON DEFENSIVE OVER VAST RUSSIAN FRONT

Badoglio Promises Active Cooperation To United Nations

In Proclamation Premier Urges People to March Shoulder to Shoulder With United States, Great Britain and Russia

NEW GOVERNMENT TO BE COMPLETED SHORTLY

Washington, Oct. 13.—(AP)—President Roosevelt, Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Stalin announced today that Italy had declared war against Germany.

The White House said Marshal Badoglio had communicated Italy's declaration against her former Axis partner to General Dwight D. Eisenhower, Allied commander in the Mediterranean theater.

In his message to the general Badoglio said that "by this act all ties with the dreadful past are broken and my government will be proud to be able to march with you on to the inevitable victory."

In a joint statement released by the White House, Mr. Roosevelt, Churchill and Stalin accepted "the active cooperation of the Italian nation and armed forces as a co-belligerent in the war against Germany."

Italy thus turned against her former partner a little more than a month after her armistice with the Allied powers.

In a proclamation to the Italian people, Badoglio said that "shoulder to shoulder we must march forward with our friends of the United States, of Great Britain, of Russia and of all the other United Nations."

Badoglio said an Italian government headed by himself would be completed shortly and that representatives of every political party would be invited to participate so that it may constitute a true expression of democratic government.

"The present management will in no way impair the untrammelled right of the people of Italy to choose their own form of democratic government when peace is restored," the marshal said.

"Italians! I inform you that his majesty the king has given me the task of announcing today, the 13th day of October, the declaration of war against Germany."

The British, Soviet and American governments acknowledged the Italian pledge to submit to the will of the Italian people after the Nazis have been driven from their homeland.

It is a striking coincidence that Italy should have taken this step just as Portugal implemented her bond of friendship with Britain.

Portugal's sturdy move in permitting the Allies to use the Azores as a base has given us a powerful new weapon with which to combat the U-boat menace, but one of the most impressive aspects of the concession is the fact that this peanut-size country is the first of the little European neutrals to look Hitler squarely in the eye and say "who's afraid of the big, bad wolf?"

This declaration doesn't in any way alter the terms of the armistice.

It may well be that the moral advantage will be the greater, for by this revolt Germany is branded before civilization for ferocious barbarities which, as Premier Badoglio puts it, have "surpassed even the limit of the human imagination."

However, the Italians still can give considerable material aid to the Allies in the drive up the peninsula, and in forthcoming amphibious operations elsewhere the small, but powerful, Italian navy should serve the United Nations well.

PRESIDENT IS LESS CHARY ON WAR NEWS

Roosevelt Volunteers Reports of Latest Developments in Europe, Pacific and at Home

DISCUSSES SUBMARINES

By DOUGLAS B. CORNELL
Washington, Oct. 13.—(P)—President Roosevelt "showed increasing signs today of being less chary about giving out war news."

With official reports from all over the world at his elbow, he has volunteered, at his last two press conferences, appraisals of late developments in Europe, the Pacific and at home.

While no reasons were given for offering these analyses to the American people, there have been complaints from the press, congress and other quarters that the country was not getting enough war news and that Prime Minister Churchill of Britain was divulging information which American correspondents knew but were hounded not to tell.

Yesterday, minus prompting, Mr. Roosevelt singled out as the important news of the day Britain's agreement with Portugal for use of Azores bases. He said it seemed obvious that in emergencies the United States would use British facilities to protect American lives and ships. Both Britain and the United States, he said, have assured the Portuguese they have no territorial ambitions in the islands.

The president stressed what he called the amazing record of American submarines in the Pacific and the destruction of enemy shipping faster than it can be replaced. In the last six months, he asserted, sinkings have averaged about 130,000 tons monthly, or about 1,400,000 tons a year.

And, to give the people an idea of how they are helping to pound Germany by air, the chief executive produced more statistics. In the 855-plane raid Friday on Bremen and Vegesack, almost 1,000,000 gallons of gasoline and 25,000 pounds of bombs, 2,750,000 rounds of ammunition, 800 pounds of maps, and more than 5,000 crewmen. They flew at least 850,000 miles and traveled 1,400 miles in taxiing, taking off and landing.

The Office of War Information reported last night that the gasoline shortage will "intensify for the duration" because of swelling war demands.

LIQUOR IS STOLEN

Philadelphia, Oct. 13.—(P)—Theft of 926 pints of whisky, valued at more than $1,700, from a south Philadelphia police liquor store, was reported to police yesterday.

$450,000 Loss In Plant Fire At Pittsburgh

Pittsburgh, Oct. 13.—(P)—Damage from the six-alarm fire which demolished a huge storage and loading warehouse of the F. J. Kress Box Company was placed at $450,000 today by J. B. Le Clerc, the president.

A few minutes after half a dozen workmen discovered the fire in the center of the structure on the Allegheny river at 28th street last night, flames were roaring in great sheets more than 200 feet into the air.

All fire fighting equipment in the city, excepting skeletonized crews, was rushed to the scene. The structure, 100 feet wide and 200 feet long, was filled with some 5,000 tons of paper and corrugated boxes.

An underground storage tank filled with 500 gallons of gasoline near the building endangered the firemen throughout their more than two-hour battle. The ruins still smoldered today.

A concrete wall between the storage building and an equally large brick structure housing the manufacturing equipment and office, prevented the flames from spreading.

So intense was the heat that small sheds across the tracks of the Allegheny Valley railroad burst into flames. The busy firemen let them burn.

Agitation For Lend-Lease Probe Grows

Demand for Inquiry Sharpens Despite Assertion of Chief Executive

SENATORS INSISTENT

Washington, Oct. 13.—(P)—Congressional demands for the investigation of lend-lease sharpened today despite President Roosevelt's assertion that this is no time to be stirring up bitterness.

Senator Nye (R-ND) declared "the subject of lend-lease will be very much under consideration" when the senate appropriations committee meets during the day. This committee passed on lend-lease outlays totaling almost $14,000,000,000 up to July 31.

Senator Ellender (D-La.), calling on the administration to start "bargaining now" with Allied beneficiaries, told the senate he would move for a separate investigation group unless the appropriations committee or the Truman committee undertakes the job soon.

The investigation demands stem largely from the observations brought back by five senators who recently toured the battle areas.

President Roosevelt challenged statements made by some of the senators and told his press-radio conference yesterday that remarks made by public servants which are not carefully thought out tend to create bitterness.

While the president was talking with reporters, however, Ellender was sending in the senate to know if lend-lease is to be a "one-way street."

BULLETINS

London, Oct. 13.—(P)—The Krupp works at Essen, "greatest armament combine in Europe" and "main source of Germany's heavy armament," has been shattered by Allied air attacks. Sir Archibald Sinclair, secretary of state for air, said in the speech at the Constitutional Club today.

Washington, Oct. 13.—(P)—A sweeping public inquiry into plane production at the Brewster Aeronautical Corporation's three plants was undertaken today by a house naval sub-committee with Under Secretary of the Navy James V. Forrestal as the first witness.

Washington, Oct. 13.—(P)—A senate foreign relations subcommittee approved 7 to 1 today a postwar foreign policy declaration which would pledge the United States to "join with free and sovereign nations in the establishment and maintenance of international authority with power to prevent aggression and to preserve the peace of the world."

London, Oct. 13.—(P)—Telling the British they would be "absolutely free" to count on "an altogether unexpected collapse" of the enemy, Prime Minister Churchill declared today "the worst fighting of the war, so far as the British people are concerned, lies ahead."

CHINESE ART EXHIBIT

Philadelphia, Oct. 13.—(P)—The United China Relief is exhibiting a collection of Chinese art brought back by Wendell Wilkie on his recent trip around the world at its Philadelphia headquarters.

57,000 Women Are Needed In Industry

Harrisburg, Oct. 13.—(P)—The United States Employment Service today reported an expected 57,000 war jobs for women will be opened in Pennsylvania in all types of industry.

R. Raymond Mason, state director, estimated women already make up approximately a third of the more than 3,000,000 workers in commonwealth industries.

"The need for women now is a localized affair," declared Mason. "Some communities need lots of them while others do not need any. We would like to have them register for jobs so that we would know what is available when the openings occur."

Mason said recruiting campaigns are under way to obtain women workers in several areas, including Philadelphia, Williamsport, Erie and Allentown.

EIGHTH ARMY ADVANCES ON ENTIRE LINE

Towns of Riccia and Bonefro, Captured by Allies, Official Front Line Dispatches Say

ARTILLERY DUEL RAGES

BY NOLAN NORGAARD

Allied Headquarters, Algiers, Oct. 13.—(P)—Battering down powerful enemy positions in central Italy, Allied troops have punched nine miles northwest of Pontelandolfo, to seize San Croce, while the Eighth Army advancing along its entire front captured Riccia and Bonefro, official front line dispatches announced today.

The plunge to San Croce sent deeper northward the spearhead outflanking the strong German Volturro river line.

(Although this dispatch did not identify them, Fifth Army troops apparently took San Croce).

Riccia, seized by the British is only eight miles northeast of San Croce.

Along the Adriatic coastal flank, Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's troops smashed four miles ahead beyond Termoli against strong German resistance.

Bonefro, 20 miles southwest of Termoli and five miles northwest of British-held Colletorto, was captured after exceptionally sharp fighting.

Southwest of Colletorto, patrols of Montgomery's British, Canadian and Indian troops penetrated six miles to the village of Santa Elia.

Along the Volturro river line, a tremendous artillery duel raged, (Turn to Page Nine)

Pope Continuing Regular Activities

Stockholm, Oct. 13.—(P)—Pope Pius XII apparently intends to remain in Vatican City even if Rome becomes a battleground, reports from Italy indicated today.

The Pope has been continuing his usual activities, these unconfirmed advices continued, and, although the papal guard of the Holy See has been increased, the Vatican's defense remains purely symbolic as the Swiss Guards are ordered never to use their rifles.

The Germans with three divisions in Rome have taken the Vatican "under protection," but German soldiers have not stepped inside the Catholic religious center nor has any move been taken to interfere with the Pope, dispatches from Rome said.

With the war zone drawing closer to Rome, however, the Stockholm newspaper Social Demokraten said, it was learned privately that the Pope had declined a German offer for a safe refuge in Liechtenstein.

Lower Quality Gasoline And Less Expected

Washington, Oct. 13.—(P)—Civilian drivers were bidden by the Office of War Information (OWI) today to expect poorer gasoline and less of it, because a big share of the fuel produced in the east, southeast and midwest must be shipped abroad in 1944 and 1945.

The domestic gasoline shortage will "intensify for the duration," said an OWI report on civilian supplies, and even the Pacific coast—which now has high stock levels—faces the prospect of "more severe rationing."

OWI conceded several governmental errors in the handling of the gasoline problem but contended that:

"The government has met the military demands fully—demands unprecedented in modern warfare. It has maintained essential civilian transportation, although at times with difficulties."

Civilians are getting 1,200,000 barrels of gasoline daily, instead of the 1,700,000 they got in 1941, OWI said. The military now is getting 30 per cent of all gasoline produced east of the Rocky Mountains, but next year will get 3.6 per cent and in 1945, 39.6 per cent.

State's Number One Citizen Confident Warren Co. Will Succeed In War Fund Drive

Will Warren county succeed in its gigantic task of raising $88,700 in the United War Fund Drive, the largest goal of any campaign in a quarter of a century?

That is the question in the minds of hundreds of people these days. It is in the minds of the general campaign committee, who have the responsibility of planning and directing the drive. It is in the minds of dozens of division chairmen and hundreds of workers, whose job it is to contact Warren county citizens. It is in the minds of patriotic citizen. In every borough, township and district of the county.

Pennsylvania's No. 1 citizen, Governor Edward Martin, believes that the Warren county campaign will succeed. In a letter addressed to Edward W. Johnson, chairman of the general committee, Governor Martin expressed his good wishes and stated: "I have every confidence in your overwhelming success."

referred to Warren county's record in various phases of the war effort and sent a message of pride and optimism to the committee and the individual workers in the big campaign.

The governor's letter, received just as the campaign is only a few days from its official opening, follows in detail:

SHIPYARDS AT KEARNY ARE FACING WALKOUT

Kearny, N. J., Oct. 13.—(P)—Threat of a walkout of thousands of ship construction workers hung today over shipyard workers at the Federal Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Company, a discharged union shop committee said.

Myron Nemiloff, the discharged committee man, said "about 2,000" workers staged a two-hour demonstration last night at the yards in what he described as a protest of the dismissal by the company of himself and four other shop committee men.

Unless the five were reinstated, he declared, a walkout threatened today. Such a walkout, he added, would "in all probability x x x be termed an outlaw strike" by the Industrial Union of Marine and Shipbuilding Workers of America, CIO.

Washington, Oct. 13.—(P)—Interior Secretary Ickes restored the nation's coal mines to the owners today, a tacit vote of trust that the operators and the union now can work out a contract which will set up conditions for increased production.

Ickes, government operator of the pits since President Roosevelt stepped into the labor dispute and ordered the seizure May 1, announced last night that he was ending the arrangement.

In this final action Ickes returned 1,700 mines to the private operators. He had relinquished operation of the other 1,600 over recent weeks, satisfied that production had been stabilized.

The secretary emphasized that he thought a much-needed boost in coal output could be accomplished best by the achievement of a contract with the United Mine Workers (UMW).

UMW President John L. Lewis had promised that the miners would disregard their traditional "no contract, no work" attitude and dig coal for the government until October 31.

The next step toward assured coal production for the impending winter appeared thus to be up to the War Labor Board (WLB).

Atlanta, Oct. 13.—(P)—Union officials asked striking truck drivers in six southern states to return to work today and end a week-long walkout that has tied up millions of pounds of freight—much of it war material.

The request was made after representatives of striking drivers received written assurances from truckline operators, the Army and U. S. Conciliation Service officials that they would lend all possible assistance in obtaining an early decision from the War Labor Board in the drivers' wage increase case.

The 14 representatives of the Brotherhood of Teamsters, Chauffeurs, Warehousemen and Helpers Union (AFU) carried the proposals to their locals after a lengthy conference here yesterday.

SOVIET FORCES ARE WIDENING BRIDGEHEADS

Russian Army Newspaper Reports Abandonment of Aerial Offensive Tactics By Germans

DRIVE NORTH OF KIEV

BULLETIN

New York, Oct. 13.—(P)—The Germans are evacuating Gomel, the White Russian "fortress," the British Broadcasting Corporation said today in a broadcast reported by CBS.

Lodonn, Oct. 13.—(P)—With the German air force reported definitely on the defensive over the vast Russian front, Soviet armies were steadily developing their ever-widening bridgeheads on the west banks of the Dnieper river today, and have, according to Berlin, launched a new power drive north of the key city of Kiev, capital of the Ukraine.

The Russian army newspaper Red Star reported the abandonment of aerial offensive tactics by the Nazis. The newspaper's military expert, Lieut. Col. Nikolai Denisov, said the initiative had passed to Soviet airmen and described the situation as a radical change from the earlier days of the campaign when the Germans were blockading Russian front-line airdromes at will, bombing air bases and sweeping the skies over the Russian front with huge formations of fighter planes.

Terrific bomber losses suffered by the Germans in air battles over Orel, Belgorod and Kharkov and the steady deterioration of enemy fighter strength combined to wipe out Nazi superiority, according to Denisov, and today the Germans have turned from mass operations to patrolling sorties, with restricted bombing missions carried out at dawn or dusk.

The Russian war bulletin also reported fierce fighting in the battles of the Dnieper, but failed to mention specific areas. It recounted deeper penetrations "many miles" west of the river and indicated that the pinning enveloping operations around Kiev were proceeding satisfactorily.

Fight Over Father Draft Is Launched

Full House Membership Begins Debate on New Allotment Allowance Proposal

CHANGING MEASURES

Washington, Oct. 13.—(P)—A two-front congressional fight over the father draft issue got underway today with the full house membership beginning debate on a new allotment-allowance proposal and a military subcommittee redrafting legislation to delay the induction of pre-war fathers.

A party fight threatened to erupt over the amount of payments to be made to dependents of service men of enlisted grade.

Republican Leader Martin of Massachusetts announced he would support an amendment by Rep. Clason (R-Mass) to boost the payments to $80 monthly for a wife and one child, with $20 extra for each additional child. This scale was approved by the senate last week, but the Democratic-controlled house committee recommended $75 monthly for a wife and one child, $95 for a wife and two children, and $15 for each additional child.

Present payments, including the $22 deduction from the service (Turn to Page Nine)

Nation's Coal Mines Restored To Operators

Coal Mines Badly In Need of Water

Johnstown, Oct. 13.—(P)—Unless rain soon ends a drought of more than a month in this district, some of the large coal mines will soon have to curtail operations due to lack of water.

The Rochester and Pittsburgh Coal Company disclosed it now is pumping water for its mines from two deep wells since its reservoir went dry and the Heisley Coal Company stated there is just enough water available to "keep us going."

Water already is being rationed in Spiesville in Somerset county to protect the dwindling supply while residents of Pergrim Hill in Cambria county have had to carry their water a quarter of a mile for several days.

Forest rangers warned that the woods and brushland are tinder dry and the danger from fires extreme. One fire which raged over 1,000 acres in southern Somerset county was finally brought under control earlier this week.

Action Brands Germany For Her Ferocious Barbarities

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

Italy's declaration of war on Germany represents both a moral and a material gain for the Allies.

It may well be that the moral advantage will be the greater, for by this revolt Germany is branded before civilization for ferocious barbarities which, as Premier Badoglio puts it, have "surpassed even the limit of the human imagination."

However, the Italians still can give considerable material aid to the Allies in the drive up the peninsula, and in forthcoming amphibious operations elsewhere the small, but powerful, Italian navy should serve the United Nations well.

This declaration doesn't in any way alter the terms of the armistice.

Man Arrested After His Car Hit Another

Michael Kondok, of Starbrick, was arrested at 12:18 this morning on a charge of reckless driving after he had crashed his car into one owned by Robert Mathis, 215 Madison avenue. The Mathis machine was parked on Pennsylvania avenue near the Liberty restaurant when it was hit. Miss Wilma Zwald, an occupant of the car which was struck, sustained an injury to one shoulder that required medical attention. The damage to both cars amounted to about $50, which will be taken care of by Kondok.

A truck driver slammed his machine into one of the parking meters yesterday afternoon and let it protrude fall and then he drove away. He had a bright red truck and a couple of witnesses saw the occurrence, but did not get the license number of the truck. One drunk who had become so tired he lay down on the sidewalk near the H. and B. Dinor was galloped into the fold and folded away on the slats. This morning he had a chat with Magistrate Greenlund.

Civil Air Patrol Hears Talk By Lieutenant James Miller

A large and enthusiastic crowd attended the open meeting of the Civil Air Patrol last evening in the large court room at the court house. Lieutenant James Miller of the Army Air Force spoke of his experiences as an Army Air Force pilot and gave in detail the successive steps in a combat mission.

In opening his remarks Lieutenant Miller spoke of the wonderful country in which we live and how much it is appreciated by the boys who are returning after spending some time in Europe and Africa. He also spoke of the food which was available on active service and explained that the constant use of canned vegetables, meats and other fare became very monotonous. His description of life in the Air Force on active service was graphic and left everyone with a greater appreciation of the work of the army aviators.

Lieutenant Miller explained that while pilots received much attention due to the fact that flying was still a novel experience to the great rank and file, actually piloting an aircraft was no more difficult than operating a motor car and that the crew chiefs and mechanics were the unsung heroes of the Air Forces.

In closing he complimented others for their part in keeping the pilots flying.

Lieutenant Fred Schuler, executive officer of Group 5 of Civil Air Patrol, gave a brief history of the early beginnings of Civil Air Patrol, its growth, and its present duties and obligations.

Lieutenant Jack Cogswell, lately of Civil Air Patrol Coastal Patrol Service, gave a description of the Coastal Patrol Service.

Captain Henry O. Walker, communications officer on the staff of the commander of Pennsylvania Wing of Civil Air Patrol, was called upon and he carefully explained the organization of the movement from the national headquarters in New York City, through the Wing Command in Harrisburg, down to the Group Command covering northwestern Pennsylvania, and finally ending with the local squadron based in Warren. Captain Walker also placed emphasis on the Civil Air Patrol Cadets, a junior organization of high school age sponsored by the local CAP Squadron, which offered valuable training to youths prior to induction into the armed forces.

Many Present As Inductees Met At YMCA

The pre-induction party for selectees held last evening at the YMCA had an attendance of about 70, much larger than was anticipated.

Dr. Arnold A. Kippen, of the State Hospital staff, talked to the men and, later, was assisted by Dr. Hilding Bengt, of the same institution, in conducting the information panel. Also assisting were Robert Whitehill, home recently with an honorable discharge from active duty, and YM Secretary Ralph H. Wagner.

Since this group was made up mainly of older men, the discussion of service and family problems was, along more serious lines than usual and well handled by the leaders in charge.

To conclude the evening, women of General Joseph Warren Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, provided and served refreshments.

There are some 10,000 parts in an airplane motor.

WE RECEIVE A COMPLIMENT

In the October 8 issue of the OPA Region-Two News Letter published at 350 Fifth Avenue, New York, comes this praise of the Warren Times-Mirror for its cooperation with the Warren Price Panel: "Congratulations to the Price Panel of Warren, Pennsylvania. Evidence of the fine job which they have been doing has just come into this office. After having reviewed the publicity which they have received in their local newspaper, we can understand why the community has fallen in step with the home front fight against inflation. The local newspaper has done a fine job of reporting the activity of this panel."

And in the War Price and Rationing Board news letter: "The local paper gave strong editorial support to the Price Panel of the Warren County (Pa.) War Price and Rationing Board, which has done an outstanding job in securing community-wide participation in its educational program. Noteworthy is their effective use of the Home Front Pledge to stimulate public interest in the price control program. Churches, clubs, youth organizations, schools and Block Leaders all contributed."

"A series of statements attractively set off with a cut of the Home Front Pledge poster appeared in the paper under the caption: 'They Are Saying About the Home Front Pledge Campaign.' Among those quoted were the superintendent of schools, chairman of the Agriculture War Board, Chief Clerk of the Board, chairman of the Warren County Defense Council and chairman of the Block Leaders."

SINK OR SWIM?

Many casualties in this war have not been in battle or direct contact with the enemy. It is sad, but true, that many are the direct result of lack of knowledge on the part of our soldiers and even sailors to care for themselves in water hazards.

The military services are unable to give training and instruction in swimming on a large scale, due to lack of instructors and facilities for swimming. For this reason the Red Cross has been asked to provide needed training at home.

Special skills and methods are necessary to preserve one's life when involved in accidents at sea. Even strong swimmers may succumb unless trained in ways to live through disasters which occur in sea warfare.

The local Chapter of the American Red Cross is conducting another series of courses in Functional and Basic Swimming, as well as in Life Saving, beginning November 1st. Classes will be held three nights each week. They are open to all qualified persons, 17 or over; both men and women.

Competent instructors are giving freely of their time and experience. Men about to enter the service, others who may soon be called, all are urged to attend these classes and partake of the worth-while instructions. Knowledge gained in these courses may, at some future date, aid in the saving of a life of some Warren County person. Sink or Swim?

SPURS THAT JANGLE

The dress uniforms of the mechanized cavalry includes regulation spurs. With which to cause the tanks and jeeps to gallop, perhaps?

In view of the shortages of both metal and manpower, is it necessary that our mechanized soldiers wear spurs? Or, for that matter, that they have dress uniforms at all, in view of the shortages of much in the way of clothing?

Airmail is setting some new volume records. The boys who fly those planes that pass over Warren daily deserve a lot of praise for their daring and efficient performances.

Only a couple days more to mail that parcel overseas. Be sure the dimensions are right—about the size of a shoe box, and the weight does not exceed five pounds.

"What's Eleanor doing now," asks the Oil City Derrick. Well, according to today's news, she's helping ex-Ambassador Bullitt in his campaign to be elected mayor of Philadelphia.

When Columbus discovered America 451 years ago he thought it was an Asiatic empire—which we have definitely decided it never will be.

It wasn't in the Cards for St. Louis to win the Series this year.

Some People's Idea of Gratitude

Washington In Wartime

By JACK STINNETT
WASHINGTON—If you want to find a rat who's cheating Uncle Sam these war days, pump a little smoke down the hole and you'll chase out one that lives by cheating the public, too.

That at least is the conclusion of W. H. Woolf, chief of the intelligence unit of the U. S. Treasury. Woolf is one of Treasury Enforcement Agencies Coordinator Elmer L. Irey's boys, and his unit's activities alone are now bringing more than $56,000,000 a year into the Treasury from income tax cheaters, to say nothing of the hundreds of millions saved by scaring the pants off crooks who would be holding out on Uncle Sam if the Treasury Woolfs weren't so active.

Among some of the choice chisellers whose cases have been written off the books in recent months, Woolf lists a card sharp, a couple of blue-sky mining stock operators, a Boston lottery king, a crooked tax adviser and three Japs.

The gambler was a New Yorker, who, Woolf estimates, counted his annual take in six figures. He's now serving 2½ years—not for gambling, but for failure to give a true and honest account of his take to the Treasury and paying his allotted tax thereon.

The lottery king served a short sentence once before for income tax evasion, but didn't learn. His second offense got him three years. Two Nevada men were the mining stock peddlers who weren't content with showing their profits with Uncle in addition to a year apiece, they each drew $20,000 fines.

What Woolf describes as "one of the neatest rackets recently uncovered by the Treasury" was that conducted in Ohio by an income tax "expert." He lured clients into his office, got their signatures on income tax returns, collected the tax payments, then changed the forms to bring in greater exemptions and pocketed the difference between what he paid the collector and what his clients had paid him. One of the slips was listing a $400 minor child exemption for an unmarried school teacher. The judge gave him three years to think that one over.

The Japs, a trio of Joes who operated a restaurant in St. Petersburg, Fla., might not have been caught at all if it hadn't been for Pearl Harbor. When the alien property seizures were made right after that memorable Sunday, they found two sets of books—one kept in Japanese and one in English. The Jap set showed a profit of $40,000 more than those set up for inspection of their poster Uncle.

IT WILL be noted that with the exception of the Japs, all the whores in this cross-section were according to Woolf, playing other games of tag with the law for which they might well have been tapped out. In other words, when nobody else could catch them, the Woolf peck did.

These "pros" in the rackets aren't the only ones who try to cheat the Treasury, of course, but it's surprising how many times criminal action turns up a criminal. Out of 112 criminal indictments filed last year, the intelligence unit got 107 convictions and nearly all of them were operating on the shady side of the street, not in legitimate businesses.

Hollywood Gossip

By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD — Movie stars, about whom thousands of words are written by others, also write about themselves. Each studio where they make a picture asks them to fill out a questionnaire—with sometimes amusing results.

Columbia's files still hold the enlightening confessions of Humphrey Bogart from his "Sahara" sojourn there. Bogie loves to cook, he wrote. He followed this assertion with details on his favorite culinary achievement, Spaghetti Italianese. But when asked about his pet aversions in foods, he wrote: "Spaghetti Italianese."

Glenn Ford—he was there making "Destiny" before joining the Marines—had an answer to a stock question usually left blank by young actors. What did he do during World War I? "I was born," he replied.

ARTHUR LAKE appears to carry his Dagwood role into real life. To "What are your household duties?" he replied: "Paying bills." Larry Simms, the Baby Dumpling of the Blondie series, answered one which most men leave strictly alone. "Do you have any beauty secrets?" To which Larry retorted: "Sure. Cold showers and sun baths."

"Is shopping a chore for you?" brought this from Edgar Buchanan: "Yes. When I need something I usually go and buy the first thing they show me—hence, three suits that don't fit. I get home and my wife raises hell and won't go out with me."

Shopping is a chore to new leading man Jess Barker for a different reason: "I never wear a hat, consequently I am usually asked by other customers, 'Where is the powder room?'"

ANN MILLER reveals something of a one-track mind. To nine questions — her first job, what her parents wanted her to be, her favorite screen work, her ambition, the kind of party she plays, the kind she likes, her special talent, her formula for keeping fit, her use of leisure time — she penciled in one answer: "Dancing."

Newcomer Shelley Winter from the stage looked at this one: "A child, were you more interested in the stage than the average boy or boy?" She wrote: "I was more interested in the average boy." Kenny Baker, now in "Doughboys in Ireland," voiced a great truth when asked what his parents wanted him to become. "Self-supporting," he wrote. "And Janet Blair's first self-earned money? "Two-bits from my parents for taking castor oil."

SIDE GLANCES - By Galbraith

"The motion is to make the office boy a junior partner, thus assuring his continual valuable services!"

Our Merchant Marine

The China Trade
Seal and Otter pelts, from the West and Northwest Coasts of the Americas were the basis of our early commerce with China.
Twelve great Chinese merchants held the monopoly for trade with "foreign devils," permitted only at Canton. Here furs were exchanged for tea, china-ware and textiles.
The "Empress of China" was the first American vessel to sail direct to China in 1784.
But the first really fast vessel for the China trade was built in 1844 and was named "HOUQUA" after the favorite Canton merchant.
Her first cargo was tea and firecrackers!
"HOUQUA" FAMOUS CHINESE MERCHANT.
Our vessels in the present war carry munitions, tanks, airplanes and guns to aid China in her long war against the Japanese.

Beware Coughs from common colds That Hang On Creomulsion relieves promptly because it goes right to the seat of the trouble to help loosen and expel germ laden phlegm, and aid nature to soothe and heal raw, tender, inflamed bronchial mucous membranes. Tell your druggist to sell you a bottle of Creomulsion with the understanding you must like the way it quickly allays the cough or you are to have your money back.

CREOMULSION for Coughs, Chest Colds, Bronchitis

The World and Warren County

This is one of a series of articles describing the work of the various welfare agencies of Warren County. It is written in connection with the Warren County United War Fund campaign for $88,700. $49,000 of this total (the largest quota in any drive in a quarter of a century) remains in Warren County.

Y. W. C. A.

Among the more noted agencies which have carried on through national and international wars and economic crises is the Young Women's Christian Association, which will receive a deserved share of the Warren County United War Fund.

The International Y. W. C. A., in fact, emerged from a post-war necessity when, at the close of the Crimean War in 1855, many nurses returned home after serving with the British Army and Navy. Out of their need came the "Y. W." and the history of the organization is the history of women at war and at work.

The strength of the Y. W. C. A. is based on its belief in practical Christianity and the practice of it. The purpose of its work is to help each girl achieve her full spiritual and physical potentiality as an individual, as a member of a world Christian fellowship and as an American citizen.

All of us are familiar with the program of the Y. W. C. A. on the Home Front, where it is one of six U. S. O. organizations, continuing and expanding the fine work it has carried on since its birth 88 years ago.

A spotlight shone on the local program of the Y. W. C. A. will reveal, among other services to women, the placing of 109 workers during the past year, through its free employment bureau. One hundred and ninety-one transient guests were accommodated in the Association's residence building and 23 free nights' lodgings were given during the year. Through the good offices of the Y. W. C. A., 29 investigations of rooms for girls were also conducted.

The "Y. W." sponsors the Girl Reserves, an organization which is open to all creeds and races, and whose 300 members in local and other schools include in their activities service projects, arts and crafts, worship services, ceremonials, conferences and hikes, parties, social times, treasurers and camps. The objectives for the year were to develop responsibility, clear thinking and leadership for a world at war—and to help plan for the future.

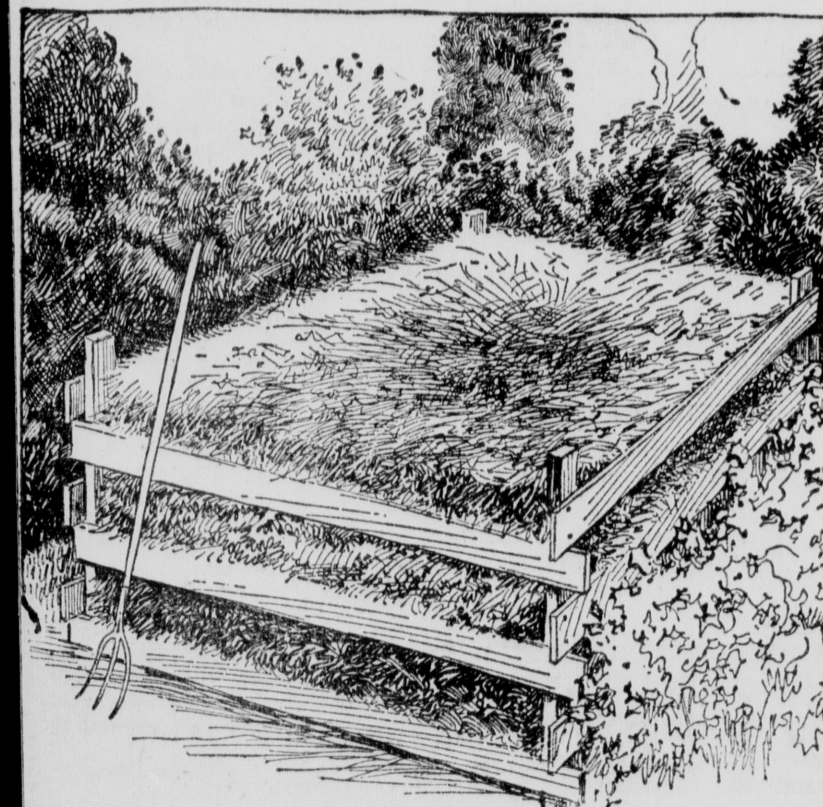

The Educational and Recreational Department of the Y. W. C. A. meets the need for all interests, including classes in sewing, arts and crafts, Spanish, nutrition, gymnasium, basketball, first aid, fencing, knitting, chair-caning, social dancing and many other similar activities.

The two clubs of the Y. W. C. A. in the business and professional department, the Y-Deb and the All-We-Je, are continuing their programs along the lines of democracy, religion and a world community, to work on Association projects, War Fund, and world fellowship to the Red Cross and other social service organizations.

The community, as a whole, makes considerable use of the facilities offered. Witness to this is the fact that the attendance at community groups totaled 12,428 and there were 30,938 meals served to the public.

When we reach the goal of $88,700, Warren county's share in the National War Fund, we shall have the satisfaction of knowing that we have aided in the work done by such splendid local agencies as this, as well as those member agencies which are included in the National War Fund.

Pile up Dead Leaves to Make Garden Humus

A Completed Compost Heap.

While decay of a compost pile proceeds slowly in cold weather, the quantity of material available for piling down into garden humus is greatest in the fall, when dead leaves accumulate.

Burning leaves is a waste, but the advice often given to spade them to the garden soil is not sound. Leaves from many trees decay so slowly that spring will find them still intact, and if many have been piled into the soil they will be a nuisance all summer long without rotting the crops.

So a compost heap, begun in the fall by piling up dead leaves, offers the best solution. It can be added in the spring and summer, with cuttings and plant debris, and next fall should provide humus of a quality which will be an unqualified blessing to your garden.

Set aside a suitable location, out the way, and preferably screened from view, or a fence; 10 x 10 feet would be an average size. Clean off vegetation, and harden the surface soil by rolling. Pile evenly over this area all dead leaves and other waste plant and even animal material, from your garden, and from kitchen wastes. But carefully exclude, if you would avoid trouble, all wood, branches, twigs and metal objects. When the layer, well tramped down, is six inches thick, sprinkle it with Victory garden fertilizer mixture, about one ounce to a square yard. Wood ashes and limestone are also beneficial, each in three or more times this quantity. Then wet it down.

Build up the heap, layer by layer, with similar applications between the layers; and keep it moist. If bad odors develop an inch of soil thrown on top of the pile will prevent them. When the pile is as high as you can conveniently manage, cover the top with soil and let it stand until you are ready to dig the humus into the garden. Start a new one to take care of current accumulations. Such compost piles, consistently maintained, should provide your garden with all the humus required for good condition.

Canadian Oil Field Project Scored As 'Questionable' By Rep. Gavin In House Speech

Washington, Oct. 13.—(P)—Rep. Gavin (R-Pa.) said in the House today that if money being spent by the American government to develop a "questionable" Canadian oil field had been spent in the petroleum fields of the United States, American production would be increased "several hundred thousand barrels" daily.

Gavin referred to the Canol project on the MacKenzie river 75 miles south of the Arctic Circle, asserting it had been widely publicized in Canada, including printed maps showing the location of the field and pipelines, but that the war department has refused to make public the terms of the American-Canadian contract on grounds of military secrecy.

"There can be no valid reason for refusal to tell exactly what our war department has contracted to do in this petroleum venture up there near the Arctic Circle," Gavin said.

"The only reason for refusal now to make the matter fully public is the fear of letting the full truth be known—that or a tacit admission that the whole thing is a failure."

He stated the project is costing the American government $138,000,000 and that the total might reach $200,000,000, adding:

"The taxpayer has the right to know how much money, where it is being spent, what it buys and, in this case, what is to become of the property after the war is over and how much oil is actually being produced."

He said it had been stated that the project will be financed with American funds, and that "after the war the pipeline and the wells x x x will be turned over jointly to Imperial Oil, Ltd., and the Standard Oil Company of California."

Petroleum Administrator Ickes, the Truman committee and others have at various times described as "impractical," Mr. Gavin said, and asserted 1941 production at Canol was 24,000 barrels of high and low-test gasoline and several grades of oil, which he described as "a drop in the bucket" compared with the annual production in the United States of 1,385,000,000 barrels.

Recommending that the house interstate and foreign committee "cause an immediate investigation of the Canol project," Gavin said the real test of the venture would be the cost of producing oil in the Canadian sub-Arctic compared with production costs in the United States. In Pennsylvania alone, he said, there is "a proven area that has a billion barrels of oil waiting to be drawn from the reluctant sands."

Flyer Wants Men Enlist Radio-Camera In Guard On For Christmas Drill Night

Say, do you have a small portable radio that is operated on direct current or do you have a small folding camera? Now if you have either of those articles and will sell them the heart of a flying man will be glad. Morey Snelting who is flying in one of the big bombers that is doing so much to get Hitler out of the war would love to have them. He is one of the men who shuttles from England to Africa and back again "laying eggs" as he goes and comes.

Relatives here in correspondence with him have asked what he wants for Christmas and he has asked for those two things in a letter mailed last Friday from Africa. So if you have either of the articles he has asked for won't you call Miss Florence Kennett this evening at 2692-Russell. You know the gifts have to be in the mail by Friday evening! And wouldn't you feel great to know you have added to the pleasure of one of those fellows flying on important missions?

Activities at the camp have included a well attended church service, an entertainment staged by boys interned in the camp and opening of a library which will provide reading materials.

He reports receiving a gift of a shirt from the Red Cross, also a weekly box of food and other supplies from that organization. The Times-Mirror extends to his many friends at his request a cheerful "hello, and don't worry about me."

WORK ABOUT COMPLETE

Work of repairing two of the piers of the Hickory street bridge is about complete. In fact, according to schedule the work was to have been finished yesterday. Much of the machinery used on the job has been loaded and hauled away while the big float will be dismantled and shipped away. The work has occupied the major portion of the summer as the float was built and launched early in the spring. The low stage of the river has greatly facilitated the work and saved the company much pumping of water which would have been necessary had the river been at the usual stage.

Mental Hygiene In Wartime Theme of Talk Before BPW

Dr. Earl Biddle, psychiatrist on the Warren State Hospital staff, was guest speaker for the October meeting of Business and Professional Women held last evening at the YWCA.

His talk dealt with mental hygiene problems arising out of adjustments that must be made during and after wartime; the building of morale and development of the individual; and interpreted the administration policies as efforts to get complete control of the people by offering them something for nothing.

The address followed dinner served at a long table done in Halloween appointments. After extending a welcome to the several guests, President Louise Neely conducted a business session. Several projects were voted, including annual participation in the Needlework Guild, continuation of the club's membership in the Children's Aid Society and of assistance in Red Cross work at Camp Reynolds and Deshon Hospital in Butler.

Four new members were voted into the club, Miola Lindmark, Martha Lupold, Mrs. J. R. Allen and Dorothy R. Baker. Routine reports were presented by Elizabeth Brasington, Inez Leake, Eunice Alexander and Ellen Thoreson. Violet Peterson accepted responsibility for securing members to sell War Stamps and Bonds at the theatres next week and Katherine Bauer reported shipment of approximately 30,000 pieces of costume jewelry in the "Doodads for Defense" salvage project.

Members were asked to bring old records to the next meeting; to their articles for the Needlework Guild collection. It was voted to dispense with the custom of having "key sisters" for the duration, such gifts to go to wartime and public efforts.

On the committee for this month were Margaret Horst, Mrs. Nora Eason, Elizabeth Brasington and Mildred Van Sickle, the latter introducing Dr. Biddle to the group.

Forest Fires Quickly Quenched By Use of New Dep't Truck

Men of the Department of Forests and Waters who last summer constructed a truck with a booster tank and hose for use in fighting forest fires now claim the truck is worth its weight in gold. Under the setup in the local office a dispatcher is constantly on the telephone and as reports of fires come in the truck and crew is sent out, the warden notified and when the truck arrives men are on the job ready for battle.

Yesterday the pump house on the Bealy lease on Morrison Run caught fire in some manner and burned down. It set fire to the woods and burned over about an acre before the fighters got it stopped. There was also a fire on York Hill which was quickly reported and the crew caught it promptly. Another raged over 50 acres near the Corry Country Club. In Richland township, Crawford county, another fire was reported. This was 600 feet wide and a half mile long. It is still burning in the ground but not spreading. Rain is badly needed and the forestry employees are watching the smallest clouds hopeful that some rain will fall.

Ask Widening Of Route 6 Through State

State Senator L. E. Chapman has written to Secretary of Highways Schroyer asking that the widening of Route 6 through the state of Pennsylvania be put on the highway program. Route 6 is the only highway that reaches from coast to coast and is a most important artery. In several places it has been widened to three car widths but in other places there are bad curves and old blacktop which make dangerous driving.

Sec. Schroyer recently announced a number of post war highway construction projects but Route 6 was ignored. Senator Chapman has been a strong advocate of making Route 6 a part of the proposed National Highway from coast to coast. This highway as planned would be a six lane affair with three lanes on each side of a boulevard.

The Roosevelt Highway Association has been working hard for the building of Route 6 into a National Pike and newspapers along the route will have to back Senator Chapman's proposal to the limit to get results.

Over Three Hundred Hear Speakers at Eagles Ceremony

An enthusiastic audience of 313 local and visiting Eagles heard a stirring patriotic message from Charles C. Guenther, of Pittsburgh, at a meeting of 313 Coneywango Aerie, on Sunday, Oct. 10, at 2 p. m.

"The MUST that we as Eagles and as Americans face in the winning of the war," declared Mr. Guenther. "While our fraternity work is close to our hearts and our own personal affairs are important to each of us, we must not overlook for the fraction of a second that the world is involved in 'total war' and that we must all do our bit.

"Eagles are doing their bit. Thirty thousand of our members are already in the service. Thousands more are ready to follow. Hundreds of thousands of us are in factories forging the weapons with which our boys will fight and overwhelm the enemy. Our women are busy putting up Victory packages for our boys. Subordinate units are busy forming blood donor clubs, organizing first aid units, co-operating with civilian defense agencies and service organizations, and launching drives to boost war bond sales in their communities.

Our Aeries have already invested $7,000,000 in war bonds, and they expect to double that amount by the end of the year. Indeed, Eagle purchases—by Aeries and by individuals through the 10 percent club—are estimated at $7,000,000 a month.

"George Washington himself gave us the formula for victory many, many years ago. During the Revolutionary War, Washington, while riding along a country road near New York, passed a thriving field of corn where three boys were busy at work. The Father of Our Country remarked about the well-kept farmhouse in the distance, the fertile fields, the mended fences. One boy threw his shoulders back, flung up his head proudly, and said: 'Father's fighting, we're digging, and mother's praying.' Fighting, digging and praying! exclaimed Washington. That's the patriotism that will bring the country out of her distress."

"Across the years George Washington is saying to us: 'Fight, dig and pray.' Our boys in uniform are fighting, and fighting gallantly. It is for us at home to dig and pray."

Speakers from Erie, Kane and Meadville were also heard. The Kane degree team put on the introductory work.

The guest of honor was entertained at dinner after the meeting. In charge of the arrangements for the highly successful affair were the following local leaders: M. Frank Masterson, Samuel Armstrong, Jerome Parks, Martin Slikstrom, Ray Fitzgerald, Theodore Speckman, Arthur Lingo and H. L. Peterson.

The dinner was served by the wives of the Eagles, and credit

Chapter 21

BIG Jim Thompson was barking into a telephone when Brad entered his office. He gestured for Brad to answer another, never breaking his conversation with the state ranger headquarters.

Brad said "Hello" and listened intently as the local ranger gave crisp orders. "Right," he said then. The chief is talking with headquarters now. I think they are sending a plane to look the situation over."

He hung up then after promising to have Thompson call if he had anything to report.

"How does it look?" he asked when the chief cradled his phone.

"Bad. Damned bad. What few reports I've had say it's gaining headway fast."

Brad wondered where Johnny Reynolds was, if he had found out anything in Emerson. If he had, it would be impossible to get hold of him now. The wires had been down for over half an hour and the town couldn't be reached without detouring for miles around the fire. Emerson was beginning to look like a hot spot in more ways than one.

Things were beginning to take shape in Brad's mind and, if he could catch Thompson off the telephone for two minutes straight, they would shape up even better. There were certain bits of information that the police chief could pigeon-hole in their proper slots.

"I'm going out there, Brad," the chief said as he hung up. "Want to come along?"

"You bet," Brad jammed his hat more securely on his head. "I've got to talk to you anyhow. Maybe you can supply a few of the answers."

They hurried out to the chief's car after Big Jim had instructed the radio operator to get in touch with him by wireless if he was needed back in town. Then, sirens screeching, he maneuvered the car into the line of traffic.

TRUCKS loaded with soldiers from a nearby training camp were rolling toward the trouble zone with axes, shovels, and long coils of hose. Those men, Brad thought as the chief passed a few of the trucks, might not be experienced firefighters but they would save the day if it could be saved at all.

THE tree wavered, fiery branches dropping on the highway. Jane pressed the accelerator against the floor boards. Then the tree was falling...

For the split second that it took for the car to plunge across the danger area, Jane was conscious of nothing except the tongues of flame that licked red, raw holes in the night. Then slowly, almost painfully, she realized that they had escaped the falling torch by the width of a bumper.

Sparks flew against the car and bounced off like tiny stars to fade into the reddish glow that was like a horribly modernistic painting.

But they were safe. The fire might be lashing at their heels but they had escaped it. In the blessed relief that flooded her veins, Jane wondered if Aunt Ella had regained consciousness. Poor soul...

What could have happened to her? Had she fallen, striking her head against the hall table?

Jane had noticed no blood on it but, then, there had been no room in her thoughts for anything but the urgent need to flee.

She drove half a mile further down the lonely road before she felt it was safe to stop and check on her aunt's condition. The fire was well behind them now.

Mrs. Black was still unconscious. Jane felt the head wound gingerly. There was very little blood now but she applied a wet towel.

In the distance she could hear shouts of the firefighters. Their words were unintelligible, mingled as they were with the roar that was much like that of a heavily loaded freight train pulling a long grade, but there was an urgency about them that stirred Jane's heart. Those men were fighting a grim and relentless enemy, an enemy who knew no quarter.

Was Brad out there with them? Jane wondered, perhaps praying a little that he was.

Or had he released her at her apartment in order to flee the district? Had the fire completed his mission here?

RESOLUTELY, she pushed the question aside. She couldn't—she wouldn't—think of them

Two state policemen waved their car to a halt a good mile from the blaze. Brad could hear the dull roar, pierced by an occasional shout.

"Better leave your car here," was the suggestion, and Brad and the police chief got out.

They watched the troop trucks roll ahead. Others were coming back empty, headed for town or the camp to pick up more supplies and men. The army had arrived. The fight was on.

Brad and Thompson set out at a dog trot toward the scene of action. Other volunteers were straggling along, too, for the fire was life and death to all of them. Either they saved Centralia and their homes—or they didn't. Right now, prospects were none too bright.

Smoke, acrid with the smell of burning pine, cut at Brad's throat and nose. He fought at inhaling it, but nothing else could be done. The air was heavy with it.

A doe, her soft eyes wide with fright, poised for a moment at the roadside, her flanks heaving, then fled. Smaller animals were more numerous. Rabbits skittered wildly through the brush. Birds were overhead, their excited cries mingling pitifully with the growling roar of the fire.

Thank God Jane's safe, Brad thought.

BUT Jane was far from safe. Finding Ella Black crumpled in the hall was a shock—but seeing the deep wound on the side of her head was a worse one. Aunt Ella was badly injured.

Jane darted into the bathroom, returning with a wet towel which she pressed against the bleeding cut. Mrs. Black groaned.

"There, there, darling," Jane soothed. "You'll be all right."

Changing the cold wet towels was taking up precious minutes. The fire was very near. Jane could hear the sickening crackle of the flames that pyramided high into the night sky. She realized, as fingers of fear traced a horrible pattern through her mind, that she must get her aunt out of there immediately.

But how? Could she get her to the car? Ella Black wasn't a large woman but she was decidedly on the plump side and Jane's 120 pounds seemed slight beside her. The blood had almost stopped now. Jane hurried back to the

now. There was no time. Aunt Ella must have medical attention in a hurry. Jane slid behind the wheel and gave the starter a vicious kick that worked off some of her anger against Brad for not taking her into his confidence.

After all, he could trust her. He should have known that. If he is a government agent. The six words were emblazoned on her mind like a front-page streamer. "You are a fool, Jane Carter," she announced, amazed that her voice sounded just the same despite the terror she had known in the last twenty minutes.

In the meantime, Brad, working side by side with a brawny army sergeant, felt that they were fighting a losing battle.

The flames were leaping from tree-top to tree-top like energetic monkeys and creeping like fiery, treacherous little snakes across the pine needles that carpeted the forest. Nothing seemed to stop it—or even to hinder the rapid spread. A stiff wind was blowing the fire hard ahead, threatening to toss it across the wide avenue that was being cleared well to the front of the advancing fire line.

Brad swung his ax again and again, chopping out the underbrush that would be like so much kindling to the flame. His hands were cut and bleeding, his clothing was ripped to shreds. His shoulders ached as every muscle protested the unusual exertion.

There had been nothing in his Secret Service training to prepare him for this, he realized grimly. The big sergeant, his Irish face wet with sweat despite the bitter December cold, was working methodically—swing, strike, toss the brush back to be carried away, swing, strike...

THE saw mill was silent for the first time in many months as the men from the owl shift joined in the fight. Could they save the irreplaceable machinery? The finished lumber that would be invaluable in war work?

It had to be saved, Brad told himself as the ax bit into another bush.

Cross-cut saws eating systematically through tree trunks. Every few seconds a tree would crash earthward, men would fall upon it like ants on a piece of sugar, and soon it would be carted bathroom and dampened three or four of the towels. It would be best to have them if the bleeding started again.

"This is going to hurt, Aunt Ella," she said, kneeling beside the inert figure.

Mrs. Black only nodded. When Jane lifted her, she groaned once and fainted. At least she wouldn't know the pain of being half-carried, half-dragged downstairs to the car. To Jane that was a comforting knowledge.

Somehow, Jane never exactly knew how she managed to reach the car and get her aunt onto the back seat. Then, weak from the exertion, she collapsed on the running board.

A moment later she jumped up. Already the flames were leaping from tree to tree at the edge of the clearing. Long red tongues reached out hungrily.

Panic struck at Jane's heart. To be trapped... She fought off the nausea that dulled her senses for a moment. Exertion had sapped her strength, left her with nothing but a fighting spirit.

The starter purred like a kitten, the engine caught, and Jane stepped hard on the accelerator. No time now to drive easily, sparing the woman on the back seat. If they were trapped, nothing mattered.

AHEAD, Jane could see the fire arching over the highway to turn the pines on the other side into flaming torches.

I'll never make it, she thought frantically. Oh, Brad...

But Brad wasn't here. He couldn't help her now. She had no one to depend on but herself. If she and Aunt Ella died, they would die alone and nothing that Brad—or anyone else was doing now mattered.

Nothing mattered but that angry red wall ahead.

Jane fought for a breath of smoke-free air, but there was none. She stepped on the gas. Lucinda Eddy's battered maroon sedan leaped ahead like a gallant thoroughbred. Jane felt her hands tighten on the wheel. Her throat felt hot and dry as the car plunged directly at that wall of flame.

It was now or never! Too late, she heard the ominous crack and saw the big tree swaying. It was going to fall directly across her path.

off and the clearing would be wider.

Two men whom Brad recognized as Red Cross workers from Centralia were coming down the line of sweating, swearing men, handing out cups of water. For the first time, Brad was aware of his dry lips, his parched throat.

He extended one grimy hand for the cup without a word and drained it. Never had champagne tasted better. Mopping sweat from his forehead with the back of his hand, he swung the ax again, picking up the old rhythm. "How're we doing, Sarge?" he asked after a while.

The soldier shook his head. He didn't miss a stroke. "Look's bad," he replied. "Pine burns quick."

You're telling me, Brad thought. Alone he said: "If the wind would change..."

"Yeah," the sergeant grunted. "We'd have a chance then."

Reinforcements were arriving. Brad could hear the trucks roll up, discharge their loads, and roar away again.

Up and down the line, men were beginning to drop out of brief rest periods and newcomers were taking their places.

And the flames were licking closer and closer, eating their way relentlessly ahead.

The men worked frantically the full length of the line. That avenue must be wider. So wide that the wind would not carry the flames across it.

BUT was it possible? Brad was beginning to doubt it. With that wind whipping from the northwest as it was, success seemed farther away than ever.

Two hours had taken a heavy toll from all of them. Brad straightened for a moment, easing some of the strain across his shoulders.

An exclamation from the husky sergeant caught his attention. "Hey, look!" Sarge shouted above the clamor.

Brad saw the man just as he fell directly in the path of the flames. With a hoarse cry, he sprang forward.

Vaguely, he heard the sergeant yell, "Come back here! There's not a chance!" but he lunged ahead. He had to reach that man before the fire did.

Some of your dollars will go to the USO to comfort and entertain our own soldiers.

Some will aid our allies...British, Chinese, Dutch, Greek, Poles, Russians, Norwegians, Belgians, French, and Yugoslavs. They will buy them food, shelter and medical care. Your money will support hospitals, nurseries and children's homes...both abroad and at home.

Some will go to local welfare agencies and help care for those in need in your own community.

Dragons Downs Falconer in Thrilling Tilt Tuesday

Notre Dame's Running Ace in Action

Fleet-footed Creighton Miller, Notre Dame's two-touchdown running ace of the game with Michigan at Ann Arbor, is pictured as he made a first down around his own left end. Good blocking by Mello and Limont conveyed him past the line of scrimmage (heavy white line), but Michigan's Daley infiltrated from the rear and is seen just before downing the Notre Dame halfback. The powerful Irish team upset pre-game dope and maintained its undefeated record by pasting the Wolverines 35-12.

DRAGONS SCORE TWICE IN FIRST FOR VICTORY

Falconer High School's injury laden grid outfit played the Warren High School Dragons on Russell Field yesterday and the Blue and White clan of Coach J. B. Leidy emerged with a hard-fought 26 to 13 victory.

Playing their second mid-week tussle of the year against the Camerounen, the locals relied heavily on their passing attack to lay one more game in the win column. Warren made two touchdowns in the first quarter. Carlson threw a pass to McLean and then Carlson plunged for the extra point. On the second touchdown of the quarter Snyder went through guard. The try for the extra point failed.

Early in the second quarter Falconer made it 13 to 6 by going over from the eight-yard line. Late in the second period, Warren's ground assault grew in proximity as they tore open the lighter enemy line with savage threats and paved the way to their third touchdown in the same session making the score at half-time 19 to 6.

Playing nine-minute quarters, each team battled on even terms in the third, and although the Falcons drove to the 11 yard stripe, they were stopped cold and Jim Snyder booted out of danger ending the stanza.

Showing all of that renowned Falconer fight, which for years has been their label, the charges of Cam Cameron started an attack after an intercepted pass thrown by George Lucia was taken by Falconer's Ken Johnson on the Falconer's 39 and raced back to the Warren 30 yard mark before being downed.

Opening up with their aerial works, the Falcons drove to the local's 1 yard line with Petersen shelling the passes, but couldn't drive through the line and another pass put them over the goal on third down after being shoved back two yards on two successive line plunges. They converted to make it 19 to 13.

Trying desperately to ward off a fumble in fear of Falconer regaining the ball in the final five minutes of play, the Dragons opened up their ground assault again, with Carlson and Snyder doing the gaining, as the former ripped off 14 yards through right guard from the Falconer 30 to the 44 and then Carlson uncorked a 30 yard aerial to Adams, who took from the Falconer 36 over to the right side of the field for Warren's fourth touchdown. McLean plunged for the point and most of the fight left the Falcons with one minute to go and the score at 26 to 13. Outstanding in the backfield were Jim Snyder and Carlson, while Beyer, McLean and Striani held the spotlight on the line.

Notre Dame In First Place In Year's Second Weekly Poll

BY HAROLD CLAASEN

New York, Oct. 13.—Nineteen of the nation's football writers agree with Coach Fritz Crisler of Michigan that Coach Frank Leahy of Notre Dame was enjoying a bit of under-statement when he termed his present team as only "fair".

The scribes, voting in the Associated Press' second weekly poll of 1943, rated Notre Dame as the best team in the country with 86 of the writers unhesitatingly marking them as No. 1. None ranked them lower than third.

Crisler, who had a disheartening side line study of the Irish Saturday, was quoted at Ann Arbor as saying "that it is by far the best Notre Dame team I have ever seen."

Notre Dame, triumphant by a 35 to 12 score over the Wolverines, collected only half of the first place votes in the inaugural poll last week but skyrocketed to 87 per cent this week after trouncing the tabulation's erstwhile second team.

Michigan, second last week, skidded to ninth place in the present voting with army taking over the runner-up slot and Navy third.

Pennsylvania, Purdue, Duke, Iowa Pre-Flight and Southern California all ranked above the Wolverines and College of the Pacific grabbed the tenth rung. The far westerners, coached by Amos Alonzo Stagg, displaced idle Minnesota in the top ten.

The leading eleven with point totals (first place votes in parenthesis):

First ten: Notre Dame (86) 941; Army (1) 847; Navy (1) 669; Pennsylvania (1) 408; Purdue 398; Duke 370; Iowa Pre-Flight 325; Southern California 309; Michigan 273; College of Pacific 125.

McCarthy Says Championship Spirit Is Factor In Success

BY JUDSON BAILEY

New York, Oct. 13.—(P)—This is a story about why the New York Yankees have won seven American League pennants and six world championships of baseball in the last eight years.

It also is a story about Joseph Vincent McCarthy, the truculent, 56-year-old Irishman who is the manager of the Yankees and the only man I ever knew whose mouth turned down at the corners when he laughed.

Coming back on the train from St. Louis where the Yankees had just finished trampling on the Cardinals, McCarthy was sitting up late at night with newspapermen in a diner.

"You'd think I would be able to sleep tonight," Joe said, "but I can't. Now that the pressure is off I just want to sit here and relax."

Someone passing from one group of celebrants to another stopped to congratulate McCarthy and told him he had done a great job with a bad ball club.

The hot Irish temper, always close to the surface, flushed up by McCarthy and he retorted in a bristling voice, "Who says it is a bad ball club? I never said it was. 'I'll tell you something,' he continued, his tone mellowing as quickly as it had hardened. 'I knew at Asbury Park last spring that this ball club would win the pennant.'

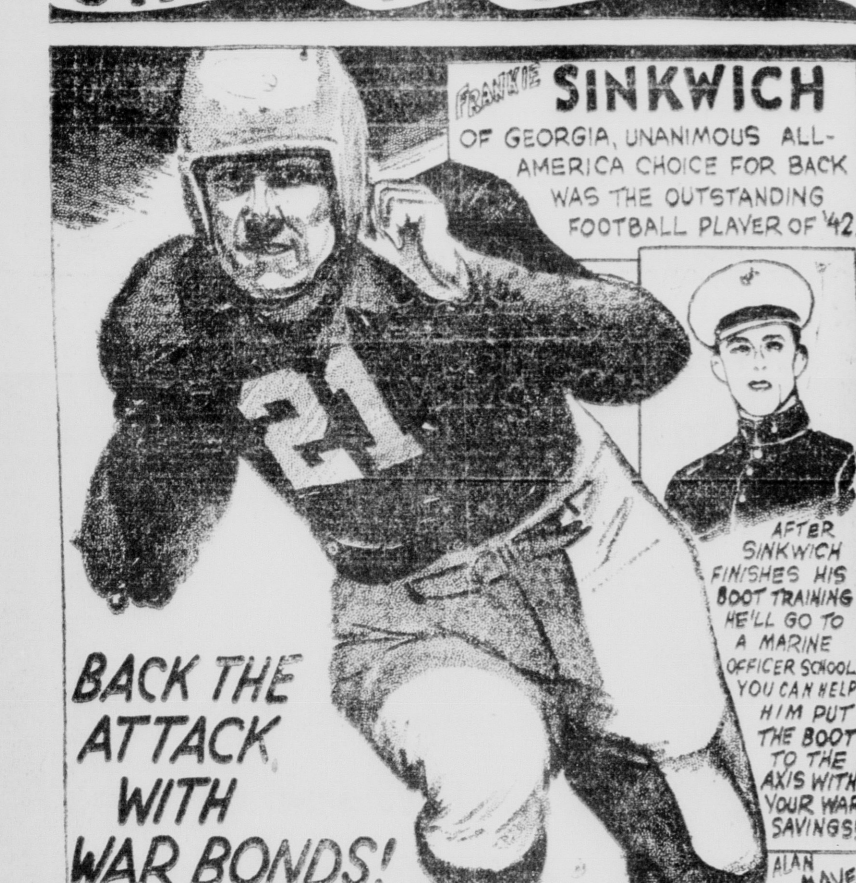

"I knew it, and I'll tell you why. It had the championship spirit. That's what wins pennants."

"You can look at a player and tell if he's a champion. If he is then it doesn't make a lot of difference about his batting average, or about his making errors now and then. If he's champion he'll win for you."

"I've got championship players on this ball club."

There is McCarthy's formula for victory. It is only complete, however, when you add that the manager himself has the championship spirit more intensely than any of his players.

Innocent Plea Made By Mercer Woman

Mercer, Oct. 13—(P)—Blonde Janice Graham, 20-year-old farm girl, pleaded innocent at her arraignment today on charges of being an accessory after the fact and accomplice in the slaying of the Everett Wilson dairy farm.

She waived a hearing for her appearance at the December term of criminal court and was held without bond.

The information read by District Attorney Edwin C. Moon before Justice of the Peace Thomas McClain charged the girl "aided, abetted and counseled" William Albert Morell, 20-year-old farmhand, who has pleaded guilty to charges of murder.

The girl, accompanied by her father, broke down and cried when returned to jail.

Eighth Army Advances On Entire Front

With British and American artillery of the Fifth Army hurling hundreds of shells across the flooded stream.

The Nazis are reported to have brought up strong artillery units also and front dispatches indicate that their lines on the river's north bank are being strengthened against Lt.-Gen. Mark W. Clark's expected assault.

There was no report of any fresh gains anywhere along the Volturno front, and nothing to indicate whether Allied patrols were succeeding in penetrating to the north bank to test the enemy's strength.

The break-through on the central front which brought new threats of eventual flanking movements from the east against the Volturno line, also resulted in capture of the towns of Cercello, Colle and Caltipagano.

On the Eighth army front from the Adriatic south to the mountainous backbone of central Italy, Allied gains were general, while enemy opposition was uneven. At some points, British patrols forged ahead against only mild resistance, but the Germans fought back desperately elsewhere.

It is possible that the Germans are rushing heavy reinforcements to the Adriatic battlefield was seen in an air force announcement that Allied fighter-bombers had scored many hits on a train loaded with motor transports on the rail line between Pescara and Teramo.

Light bombers hammered road junctions around Vasto, 18 miles above Teramo, yesterday, and fighter-bombers struck at enemy gun positions and trains in the Teramo area.

Night-flying fleets also blasted at railroad bridges and yards at Civitavecchia 40 miles northwest of Rome.

No Allied planes were lost.

Thunderbolt Proving New Jap Menace

Finschafen had killed 400 Japanese.

Other Allied air blows reported in the communiqué included strikes in the Solomons against concentrations of barges around Choiseul. It was to Choiseul that the Japanese managed to evacuate some of their troops through a sea-air blockade from the central Solomons. Those Japanese now may be trying to get out of Choiseul by barge to Bougainville. Gun positions on South Bougainville also were raided.

NOTICE

"Pulpwood cutting has recently been listed as an essential occupation and those engaged in it should now include such activities in connection with any application for supplementary gasoline, tire, or automotive rationing."

"If you are using gasoline-powered equipment in sawing, drawing or trucking pulpwood and it is absolutely necessary for you to have an additional allowance, you should report the fact to your local rationing board, giving full information as to the number of cords to be cut and the distance it must be trucked."

"Calling prices for pulpwood have been set by this office and are available upon application to your nearest OPA District Office. There is no present intention of revising these prices."

PROCLAMATION

by
Governor Edward Martin

In calling attention to a serious shortage of pulpwood and devoting their organized efforts to increase production, the newspapers of our Nation are performing a valuable public service.

Pulpwood is vital to the progress of the war because of its widespread use in smokeless powder, paper-board containers for shells, food and ammunition for our fighting forces, blood plasma kits, rayon and paper parachutes and many other war essentials.

Official figures indicate a shortage of 2,500,000 cords under the minimum of 13,000,000 cords needed for war and essential civilian requirements for 1943. This is a matter of deep concern. I ask all citizens to aid the newspapers in their campaign to increase production and I appeal especially to all woodland farmers and woodcutters in Pennsylvania to enlist in the Victory Pulpwood Drive and to devote at least three extra days to cutting pulpwood this Fall.

Tuxedo Located After Hunt But Corah Didn't Use It

Guadalcanal—(Delayed) — Private First Class Edward M. Corah, former summer-theater actor, now serving in a U. S. Marine mortar platoon, nearly acquired the unique distinction of being the only man ever to wear a tuxedo on this primitive jungle island.

Pfc. Corah, son of Mrs. Mary M. Corah, of 304 Union street, Warren, Pennsylvania, was master of ceremonies at an amateur revue staged by his unit on an improvised theater in a jungle clearing. Several days prior to the show, a search was made throughout the island for a tuxedo. The Air Corps, the Navy, the Sea Bees and finally the Army were tried, and strange to report a tuxedo was actually found deep in the bottom of an officer's trunk.

But the vagaries of the theater and the people who write scripts stepped in at this point. Last-minute script changes called for Corah's wearing summer khaki trousers and shirt rather than the long-tailed tuxedo.

"Blame it on the man behind the scenes," Corah said. "My officers came through with the 'tux,' and I was ready to go into Ripley's Hall of Fame, but a script's a script, come hell or high water!"

The 27-year-old former actor, who has appeared on the same stage with Tallulah Bankhead, the late George M. Cohan, Taylor Holmes and other stage celebrities, has worked with the Jamestown Players Club, Jamestown, N. Y., where he also did radio work, and with the Cambridge Springs Players at Cambridge, Pennsylvania.

Ration Board Announces Rule On Tires

More news on the tire shortage. Many motorists making applications for new tires and after considerable delay, receiving certificates for second-hand tires are contacting the Board either that their needs are of sufficient importance to warrant new tires or they are unable to obtain second-hand tires or the second-hand tires they could obtain would not answer the purpose.

The Local Ration Board and everyone connected with it wishes to announce to everyone in Warren County this condition is thoroughly understood, but nothing can be done.

The tire situation of every applicant is known by the Board before any decision is made, so nothing can be gained by attempting to impress the Board by individual needs. The fact of the matter is the shortage of new and second-hand tires is increasing at the same time tires in use have been wearing out. Many cars laid up because of shortage of tires are not going to be put back in service regardless of the need for them.

In such a situation, the need is carefully balanced at the Board with the supply. The need cannot create what does not exist. Rationing can only attempt to give to those who have the greatest need that which already exists.

So don't call us, write us, or waylay us.

Evidences: Amendment No. 52 sets the minimum mileage requirement for a new tire at 601 miles per month. Until a few days ago any motorist with occupational mileage of 240 miles per month was eligible to make application for a new tire.

The only partial answer is: save the tires you now have by reducing speed, mileage, and tire abuse.

To motorists interested in obtaining their new A books for use November 9th, there were recently two items in the Pittsburgh Post-Gazette of considerable interest.

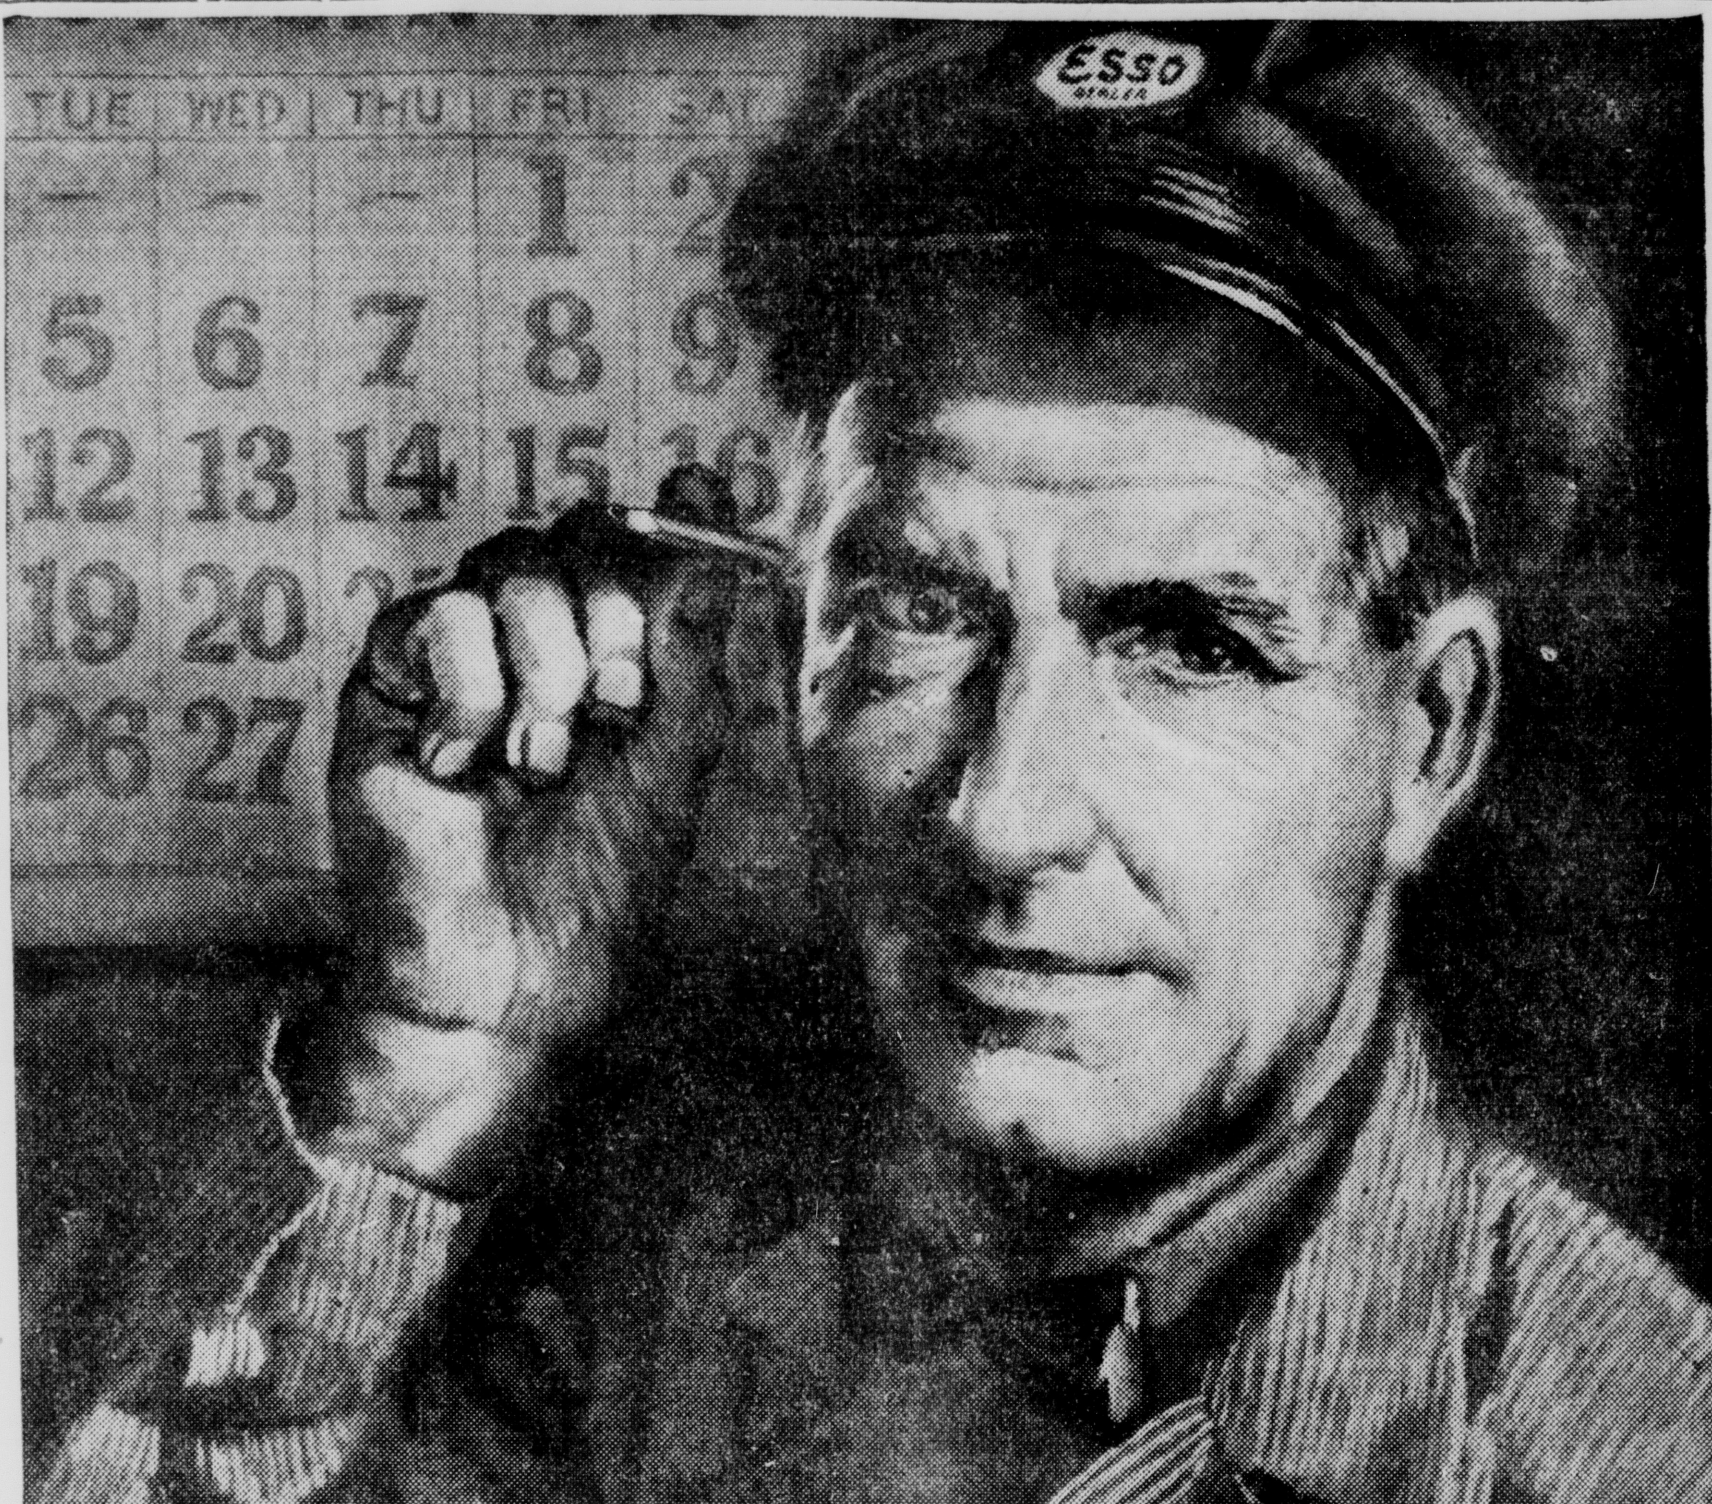

The item under an Oil City date-line indicated the Oil City Ration Board completed their plans for renewing A books and their plans called for all renewal applications being in before a deadline set for October 15th.

That is strictly a Local Board ruling and does not affect the plans already made by your Local Board and in operation for sometime. Applications will continue to be processed as received, whenever received, without any deadline.

The item under a Pittsburgh date-line revealed the many errors in the new A book applications. Simple errors in copying tire serial numbers. Serial numbers on the application different from numbers certified by official tire inspectors with no tire purchase certificate to account for it.

Your board is concerned by this same situation for on any day recently, more than half of the applications received were returned with a note stating corrections would have to be made before renewal would be granted.

Your Board warns you to follow

"Naturally, I don't know when the war will end..."

"The sooner the better, is all I can say. But I know that until it ends, you and I have a duty to your car that gets more important every day..."

"EVERY CAR that still runs is an essential cog in the country's whole transportation scheme. As the older cars quit, the ones still left get more and more essential."

"I'm not making scare-talk when I say that even standing in a garage most of the time, your car gets run down. Metals corrode. Oil gets dirty and sludgy. Grease dries out. The battery runs down. Spark plugs get fouled up. Radiator hose connections go bad. Tires get soft, so the sidewalls bend and crack."

"In these times, it's a crime to let this happen. Because you don't have to! Almost anyone's car can see him through, if he'll give it a chance."

"We're still here with everything it takes to help protect your car, whatever make it is. You find us short-handed sometimes, but we're long on experience and good equipment and reliable Esso products."

"However little you drive, you need winter oil and a winter grease job. Your battery fit and strong."

Your radiator tight and ready with anti-freeze. Your tires checked over, maybe switched around to get the most out of them. This is mighty important right now—to keep your car in service for the duration. Come on in. Right this week. Winter's getting close!"

instructions on the application form and do not send it in unless it is correctly made out with correct numbers. No new A books will be issued unless tires that have been changed since the last inspection can be accounted for.

County Board Of Assistance Holds Meeting

The Warren County Board of Assistance announced that at their last meeting, Mrs. Marie Carlson, one of their stenographers, applied for a military leave of absence as she had joined the WACs and expected to be called for service soon. The leave was granted with the best wishes of the county board and their congratulations on her acceptance into her country's armed forces. Due to the dropping case load, her position will not be filled.

As of October 11, 1943, there are 396 cases receiving public assistance through the local office; of these 271 are receiving old age assistance—people over 65 years of age who have no other means of support; 77 people are receiving blind pensions—people over 21 years of age whose vision does not exceed 100-200th of normal; 26 cases receiving aid to dependent children—children who are under 18 years, going to school and who, through the incapacity of one or both parents, need help; and 22 cases receiving general assistance—the needy in the county who do not fit in any of the other categories.

The board also announces that there is no one on assistance under 65 years of age who is employable and that there has not been for eighteen months.

In October, 1941, the case load was 713 and the employees 17 and today the case load is 396, employees 8, a drop of 43% in case load and 33% in employees.

The present board—which serves without any remuneration, consists of: The Rev. J. C. Wygant, chairman; Mrs. Emma Christman, vice chairman; C. H. Whitaker, secretary; Mrs. Kathryn Frantz, Floyd G. Carter, Frederick A. Shaw and Raymond Morrison.

Rationing boards in some nearby towns have announced that any persons who are reported to be exceeding the 35-mile speed limit will have difficulty in obtaining gasoline or tires from the board.

Grange Plans Booster Night For Hallowe'en

Following routine business at the regular meeting, Warren Grange, No. 1025, made plans for a Hallowe'en party and held its annual "Booster Night" program.

The party will be held in conjunction with the next regular meeting and all members are to come in costume or pay a fine. In addition, the ladies are asked to each bring a pumpkin pie. Appointed as a committee were Mrs. Charles Hoffman, Mrs. Martha Edwards, Mrs. Vera Taft and Mrs. Mabel Munger.

Master Walter Taft was in charge of the session, with balloting on candidates following the opening song. Applications for new memberships and communications were read and a report given by Treasurer Freeman Knopf. Mr. and Mrs. Harold Virkler and Marion Simones were named a refreshments committee for next meeting.

The "Booster" program was as follows: Song, by all; accordion selections; Doreen Baird; song and dance numbers, Martha Ann Edwards; reading, Margaret Johnson; panel discussion conducted by Dr. C. J. Frantz, with the following participating: Brokenjaw Grange at Youngsville, R. L. Albright, Mrs. Warner Grange, Mrs. Mabel Haight, William Stuart and James H. Frantz.

To conclude, Rev. J. C. Wygant gave a talk and the home economics committee served refreshments.

The State Highway Department has issued a new manual designating the type and kind of all highway signs and markers which will be officially permitted and approved. The new instructions are to be sent to all municipal and county authorities within the next few days.

ITALY DECLARES WAR ON GERMANY

NAZI AIR FORCE ON DEFENSIVE OVER VAST RUSSIAN FRONT

Badoglio Promises Active Cooperation To United Nations

In Proclamation Premier Urges People to March Shoulder to Shoulder With United States, Great Britain and Russia

NEW GOVERNMENT TO BE COMPLETED SHORTLY

Washington, Oct. 13.—(AP)—President Roosevelt, Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Stalin announced today that Italy had declared war against Germany.

The White House said Marshal Badoglio had communicated Italy's declaration against her former Axis partner to General Dwight D. Eisenhower, Allied commander in the Mediterranean theater.

In his message to the general Badoglio said that "by this act all ties with the dreadful past are broken and my government will be proud to be able to march with you on to the inevitable victory."

In a joint statement released by the White House, Mr. Roosevelt, Churchill and Stalin accepted "the active cooperation of the Italian nation and armed forces as a co-belligerent in the war against Germany."

Italy thus turned against her former partner a little more than a month after her armistice with the Allied powers.

In a proclamation to the Italian people, Badoglio said that "shoulder to shoulder we must march forward with our friends of the United States, of Great Britain, of Russia and of all the other United Nations."

Badoglio said an Italian government headed by himself would be completed shortly and that representatives of every political party would be invited to participate so that it may constitute a true expression of democratic government.

"The present management will in no way impair the untrammelled right of the people of Italy to choose their own form of democratic government when peace is restored," the marshal said.

"Italians! I inform you that his majesty the king has given me the task of announcing today, the 13th day of October, the declaration of war against Germany."

The British, Soviet and American governments acknowledged the Italian pledge to submit to the will of the Italian people after the Nazis have been driven from their homeland.

32D NATION TO WAR ON THE AXIS POWERS
Washington, Oct. 13.—(P)—Italy is the 32nd nation to declare war on Germany in this war. She is, however, the only one not a member of the United Nations, or an affiliate, such as the French committee of National Liberation. The first country to declare war against Germany was England on September 3, 1939.

Mr. Roosevelt, Churchill and Stalin said it was understood that "nothing can detract from the absolute and untrammelled right of the people of Italy by constitutional means to decide on the democratic form of government they will eventually have."

But in a joint statement they added that the relationship of co-belligerency, of itself, could not affect the armistice terms, which retain their full force and can be adjusted only by agreement among the Allied governments "in the light of the assistance which the Italian government may be able to provide."

It may well be that the moral advantage will be the greater, for by this revolt Germany is branded before civilization for ferocious barbarities which, as Premier Badoglio puts it, have "surpassed even the limit of the human imagination."

However, the Italians still can give considerable material aid to the Allies in the drive up the peninsula, and in forthcoming amphibious operations elsewhere the small, but powerful, Italian navy should serve the United Nations well.

This declaration doesn't in any way alter the terms of the armistice.

Italy is not an "ally" in the accepted sense of the term, but as a "co-belligerent" must pay the penalty—and pay dearly—for her partnership in the Axis.

It is a striking coincidence that Italy should have taken this step just as Portugal implemented her bond of friendship with Britain.

Portugal's sturdy move in permitting the Allies to use the Azores as a base has given us a powerful new weapon with which to combat the U-boat menace, but one of the most impressive aspects of the concession is the fact that this peanut-size country is the first of the little European neutrals to look Hitler squarely in the eye and say "who's afraid of the big, bad wolf?"

So intense was the heat that small sheds across the tracks of the Allegheny Valley railroad burst into flames. The busy firemen let them burn.

PRESIDENT IS LESS CHARY ON WAR NEWS

Roosevelt Volunteers Reports of Latest Developments in Europe, Pacific and at Home

DISCUSSES SUBMARINES

By DOUGLAS B. CORNELL
Washington, Oct. 13.—(P)—President Roosevelt showed increasing signs today of being less chary about giving out war news.

With official reports from all over the world at his elbow, he has volunteered, at his last two press conferences, appraisals of late developments in Europe, the Pacific and at home.

While no reasons were given for offering these analyses to the American people, there have been complaints from the press, congress and other quarters that the country was not getting enough war news and that Prime Minister Churchill of Britain was divulging information which American correspondents knew but were honor-bound not to report.

Yesterday, minus prompting, Mr. Roosevelt singled out as the important news of the day Britain's agreement with Portugal for use of Azores bases. He said it seemed obvious that in emergencies the United States would use British facilities to protect American lives and ships. Both Britain and the United States, he said, have assured the Portuguese they have no territorial ambitions in the islands.

The president stressed what he called the amazing record of American submarines in the Pacific and the destruction of enemy shipping faster than it can be replaced. In the last six months, he asserted, sinkings have averaged about 130,000 tons monthly, or about 1,400,000 tons a year.

And, to give the people an idea of how they are helping to pound Germany by air, the chief executive produced more statistics.

In the 855-plane raid Friday on Bremen and Vegesack, almost 1,000,000 gallons of gasoline and 25,000 gallons of oil were used. The planes carried some 2,500,000 pounds of bombs, 2,750,000 rounds of ammunition, 800 pounds of maps, and more than 5,000 crewmen. They flew at least 850,000 miles and traveled 1,400 miles in taxiing, taking off and landing.

The Office of War Information reported last night that the gasoline shortage will "intensify for the duration" because of swelling war demands.

LIQUOR IS STOLEN
Philadelphia, Oct. 13.—(P)—Theft of 926 pints of whisky, valued at more than $1,700, from a south Philadelphia state liquor store, was reported to police yesterday.

$450,000 Loss In Plant Fire At Pittsburgh

Pittsburgh, Oct. 13.—(P)—Damage from the six-alarm fire which demolished a huge storage and loading warehouse of the F. J. Kress Box Company was placed at $450,000 today by J. B. Le Clerc, the president.

A few minutes after half a dozen workmen discovered the fire in the center of the structure on the Allegheny river at 28th street last night, flames were roaring in great sheets more than 200 feet into the air.

All fire fighting equipment in the city, excepting skeletonized crews, was rushed to the scene. The structure, 100 feet wide and 200 feet long, was filled with some 5,000 tons of paper and corrugated boxes.

An underground storage tank filled with 500 gallons of gasoline near the building endangered the firemen throughout their more than two-hour battle. The ruins still smoldered today.

A concrete wall between the storage building and an equally large brick structure housing the manufacturing equipment and office, prevented the flames from spreading.

So intense was the heat that small sheds across the tracks of the Allegheny Valley railroad burst into flames. The busy firemen let them burn.

Agitation For Lend-Lease Probe Grows

Demand for Inquiry Sharpens Despite Assertion of Chief Executive

SENATORS INSISTENT

Washington, Oct. 13.—(P)—Congressional demands for the investigation of lend-lease sharpened today despite President Roosevelt's assertion that this is no time to be stirring up bitterness.

Senator Nye (R-ND) declared "the subject of lend-lease will be very much under consideration" when the senate appropriations committee meets during the day. This committee passed on lend-lease outlays totaling almost $14,000,000,000 up to July 31.

Senator Ellender (D-La.), calling on the administration to start "haggling now" with Allied beneficiaries, told the senate he would move for a separate investigation group unless the appropriations committee or the Truman committee undertakes the job soon.

The investigation demands stem largely from the observations brought back by five senators who recently toured the battle areas. President Roosevelt challenged statements made by some of the senators and told his press-radio conference yesterday that remarks made by public servants which are not carefully thought out tend to create bitterness.

While the president was talking with reporters, however, Ellender was demanding in the senate to know if lend-lease is to be a "one-way street."

BULLETINS

London, Oct. 13.—(P)—The Krupp works at Essen, "greatest armament combine in Europe" and "main source of Germany's heavy armament," has been shattered by Allied air attacks, Sir Archibald Sinclair, secretary of state for air, said in the speech at the Constitutional Club today.

Washington, Oct. 13.—(P)—A sweeping public inquiry into plane production at the Brewster Aeronautical Corporation's three plants was undertaken today by a house naval sub-committee with Under Secretary of the Navy James V. Forrestal as the first witness.

Washington, Oct. 13.—(P)—A senate foreign relations subcommittee approved 7 to 1 today a resolution pledging the United States "join with free and sovereign nations in the establishment and maintenance of international authority with power to prevent aggression and to preserve the peace of the world."

London, Oct. 13.—(P)—Telling the British they would be "absolute fools" to count on "an altogether unexpected collapse" of the enemy, Prime Minister Churchill declared today "the worst fighting of the war, so far as the British people are concerned, lies ahead."

CHINESE ART EXHIBIT
Philadelphia, Oct. 13.—(P)—The United China Relief is exhibiting a collection of Chinese art brought back by Wendell Wilkie on his recent trip around the world at its Philadelphia headquarters.

57,000 Women Are Needed In Industry

Harrisburg, Oct. 13.—(P)—The United States Employment Service today reported an expected 57,000 war jobs for women will be opened in Pennsylvania in all types of industries.

R. Raymond Mason, state director, estimated women already make up approximately a third of the more than 3,000,000 workers in commonwealth industries.

"The need for women now is a localized affair," declared Mason. "Some communities need lots of them while others do not need any. We would like to have them register for jobs so that we would know what is available when the openings occur."

Mason said recruiting campaigns are under way to obtain women workers in several areas, including Philadelphia, Williamsport, Erie and Allentown.

EIGHTH ARMY ADVANCES ON ENTIRE LINE

Towns of Riccia and Bonefro, Captured by Allies, Official Front Line Dispatches Say

ARTILLERY DUEL RAGES

By NOLAND NORGAAARD
Allied Headquarters, Algiers, Oct. 13.—(P)—Battering down powerful enemy positions in central Italy, Allied troops have punched nine miles northwest of Pontelandolfo, to seize San Croce, while the Eighth Army advancing along its entire front captured Riccia and Bonefro, official front line dispatches announced today.

The plunge to San Croce sent deeper northward the spearhead outflanking the strong German Volturno river line.

(Although this dispatch did not identify them, Fifth Army troops apparently took San Croce).

Riccia, seized by the British is only eight miles northeast of San Croce.

Along the Adriatic coastal flank, Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's troops smashed four miles ahead beyond Termoli against strong German resistance.

Bonefro, 20 miles southwest of Termoli and five miles northwest of British-held Colletorto, was captured after exceptionally sharp fighting.

Southwest of Colletorto, patrols of Montgomery's British, Canadian and Indian troops penetrated six miles to the village of Santa Elia.

Along the Volturno river line, a tremendous artillery duel raged. (Turn to Page Nine)

Pope Continuing Regular Activities

Stockholm, Oct. 13.—(P)—Pope Pius XII apparently intends to remain in Vatican City even if Rome becomes a battleground, reports from Italy indicated today.

The Pope has been continuing his usual activities, these unofficially advised continued, and, although the papal guard of the Holy See has been increased, the Vatican's defense remains purely symbolic as the Swiss Guards are ordered never to use their rifles.

The Germans with three divisions in Rome have taken the Vatican "under protection," but German soldiers have not stepped inside the Catholic religious center nor has any move been taken to interfere with the Pope, dispatches from Rome said.

With the war zone drawing closer to Rome, however, the Stockholm newspaper Stocial Demokraten said, it was learned privately that the Pope had declined a German offer for a safe refuge in Liechtenstein.

Lower Quality Gasoline And Less Expected

Washington, Oct. 13.—(P)—Civilian drivers were bidden by the Office of War Information (OWI) today to expect poorer gasoline and less of it, because a big share of the fuel produced in the east, southeast and midwest must be shipped abroad in 1944 and 1945.

The domestic gasoline shortage will "intensify for the duration," said an OWI report on civilian supplies, and even the Pacific coast—which now has high stock levels—faces the prospect of "more severe rationing."

OWI conceded several governmental errors in the handling of the gasoline problem but contended that:

"The government has met the military demands fully—demands unprecedented in modern warfare. It has maintained essential civilian transportation, although at times with difficulties."

Civilians are getting 1,200,000 barrels of gasoline daily, instead of the 1,700,000 they got in 1941, OWI said. The military now is getting 30 per cent of all gasoline produced east of the Rocky Mountains, but next year will get 54 per cent and in 1945, 39.6 per cent.

The 14 representatives of the Brotherhood of Teamsters, Chauffeurs, Warehousemen and Helpers Union (AFL) carried the proposals to their locals after a lengthy conference here yesterday.

State's Number One Citizen Confident Warren Co. Will Succeed In War Fund Drive

Will Warren county succeed in its gigantic task of raising $88,700 in the United War Fund Drive, the largest goal of any campaign in a quarter of a century?

That is the question in the minds of hundreds of people these days. It is in the minds of the general campaign committee, who have the responsibility of planning and directing the drive. It is in the minds of dozens of division chairmen and hundreds of workers, whose job it is to contact Warren county citizens. It is in the minds of patriotic citizens in every borough, township and district of the county.

Pennsylvania's No. 1 citizen, Governor Edward Martin, believes that the Warren county campaign will succeed. In a letter addressed to Edward W. Johnson, chairman of the general committee, Governor Martin expressed his good wishes and stated: "I have every confidence in your overwhelming success."

Governor Martin, in his letter, referred to Warren county's record in various phases of the war effort and sent a message of pride and optimism to the committee and the individual workers in the big campaign.

The governor's letter, received just as the campaign is only a few days from its official opening, follows in detail:

SHIPYARDS AT KEARNY ARE FACING WALKOUT

Kearny, N. J., Oct. 13.—(P)—Threat of a walkout of thousands of ship construction workers hung today over the Kearny yards of the Federal Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Company, a discharged union shop committee said.

Myron Nemtoff, the discharged committee chairman, said "about 2,000" workers staged a two-hour demonstration last night at the yards in what he described as a protest of the dismissal by the company of himself and four other shop committeemen.

Unless the five were reinstated, he declared, a walkout threatened today. Such a walkout, he added, would "in all probability x x x be termed an outlaw strike" by the Industrial Union of Marine and Shipbuilding Workers of America, CIO.

Nation's Coal Mines Restored To Operators

Washington, Oct. 13.—(P)—Interior Secretary Ickes restored the nation's coal mines to the owners today, a tacit vote of trust that the operators and the union now can work out a contract which will set up conditions for increased production.

Ickes, government operator of the pits since President Roosevelt stepped into the labor dispute and ordered the seizure May 1, announced last night that he was ending the arrangement.

In this final action Ickes returned 1,700 mines to the private operators. He had relinquished operation of the other 1,600 over recent weeks, satisfied that production had been stabilized.

The secretary emphasized that he thought a much-needed boost in coal output could be accomplished best by the achievement of a contract with the United Mine Workers (UMW).

UMW President John L. Lewis had promised that the miners would disregard their traditional "no contract, no work" attitude and dig coal for the government until October 31.

The next step toward assured coal production for the impending winter appeared thus to be up to the War Labor Board (WLB).

SOVIET FORCES ARE WIDENING BRIDGEHEADS

Russian Army Newspaper Reports Abandonment of Aerial Offensive Tactics By Germans

DRIVE NORTH OF KIEV

BULLETIN

New York, Oct. 13.—(P)—The Germans are evacuating Gomel, the White Russian "fortress," the British Broadcasting Corporation said today in a broadcast reported by CBS.

London, Oct. 13.—(P)—With the German air force reported definitely on the defensive over the vast Russian front, Soviet armies were steadily developing their ever-widening bridgeheads on the west banks of the Dnieper river today, and have, according to Berlin, launched a new power drive north of the key city of Kiev, capital of the Ukraine.

The Russian army newspaper Red Star reported the abandonment of aerial offensive tactics by the Nazis. The newspaper's military expert, Lieut. Col. Nikolai Denisov, said the initiative had passed to Soviet armies and described the situation as a radical change from the earlier days of the campaign when the Germans were blockading Russian front-line airdromes at will, bombing air bases and sweeping the skies over the Russian front with huge formations of fighter planes.

Terrific bomber losses suffered by the Germans in air battles over Orel, Belgorod and Kharkov and the steady deterioration of enemy fighter strength combined to wipe out Nazi superiority, according to Denisov, and today the Germans have turned from mass operations to patrolling parties, with restricted bombing missions carried out at dawn or dusk.

The Russian war bulletin also reported fierce fighting in the battles of the Dnieper, but failed to mention specific areas. It recounted deeper penetrations "many miles" west of the river and indicated that the pincer enveloping operations around Kiev were proceeding satisfactorily.

Coal Mines Badly In Need of Water

Johnstown, Oct. 13.—(P)—Unless rain soon ends a drought of more than a month in this district, some of the large coal mines will soon have to curtail operations due to lack of water.

The Rochester and Pittsburgh Coal Company disclosed it now is pumping water for its mines from two deep wells since its reservoir went dry and the Heisley Coal Company stated there is just enough water available to "keep us going."

Water already is being rationed in Spiesville in Somerset county to protect the dwindling supply while residents of Pergrim Hill in Cambria county have had to carry their water a quarter of a mile for several days.

Forest rangers warned that the woods and brushland are tinder dry and the danger from fires extreme. One fire which raged over 1,000 acres in southern Somerset county was finally brought under control earlier this week.

Action Brands Germany For Her Ferocious Barbarities

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst
Italy's declaration of war on Germany represents both a moral and a material gain for the Allies.

However, the Italians still can give considerable material aid to the Allies in the drive up the peninsula, and in forthcoming amphibious operations elsewhere the small, but powerful, Italian navy should serve the United Nations well.

Program On Health To Be Of Interest

Believing that healthier children make for a better democracy, the Medical Auxiliary of Warren county is stressing the importance of eating the right kind of food when it presents its annual "Public Health Day" program at 8:30 p. m. Monday evening, October 18, at the high school auditorium.

For Warren's pre-school mothers' clubs, this will take the place of their regular October meetings and Parent-Teacher groups throughout the county are planning to attend.

Two short movies, "Hidden Hunger" and "Foods and Nutrition," will be shown. Miss Arlene M. Schure, home economics advisor for Warren county, will speak on "Foods for YOUR Family," with question-and-answer period to follow.

"Everyone who has studied nutrition under Miss Schure knows the great help her course is in opening parents' eyes to the necessity of an adequate diet, not only for their children, but for themselves. In these times of substitute foods and shortages, it is more important than ever to know what foods are a daily 'must,' what ways to use in preparing them to save most of their vitamins and minerals; and what are the easiest ways to make bulky appetites respond to wartime cooking" in the opinion of Mrs. Leonard Rosenzweig, president of the Medical Auxiliary.

"We are presenting this program in the hope that it will bring to many mothers and fathers the realization of the need for not more costly but more nutritious diets for our families. The program is free to the public and we hope the public will come and profit by it," she added.

The committee planning this "Public Health Day" is headed by Mrs. William Ball, with Mrs. J. T. Valone, Mrs. Robert Taylor and Mrs. Ralph Otterbein assisting.

Rabbit Show To Be Held At Youngsville

The Warren County Domestic Rabbit Association is sponsoring a one-day Domestic Rabbit Show to be held indoors at Youngsville Island Park, October 17th. A cordial invitation is extended to the public to attend this first of a series of shows scheduled by the association. Admission is free.

The organization has only recently been formed but already it promises to be of lasting significance throughout this section. Everyone engaged in the raising of rabbits is invited to enter their stock. You need not belong to the association, nor need you join later, in order to enter your animals; but nevertheless the organization would like to have those interested make application for membership in the Warren County Domestic Rabbit Association of which the primary purpose is to further the interests of the rabbit industry throughout this region.

There will be a 10c entry fee per rabbit, but a doe and entire litter can be entered for 10c, provided the litter is under 2 months of age. All entries should be made by 10 o'clock in order to qualify your stock for the judging.

Throughout all parts of the country the domestic rabbit is reaching a plane equal to that held by the other animal industries, and while this section has not heretofore grasped as firmly the potential value of the domestic rabbit, it is now taking great strides in that direction. Macy's in New York City is one of the leading stores in which rabbit hutch and supplies have been added recently and today there exist many extensive enterprises devoting their entire time to this promising industry.

Until this war draws to a victorious close and continued on into the day of normal peace-time living, the Warren County Domestic Rabbit Association is going to "Keep-Em-Hoppin'!"

Free Drafting Course Will Start Tonight

An opportunity to register for any of five other courses will also be afforded tonight—these courses are Cost Procedures in War Production to be taught by C. O. Swanson local public accountant, Applied Mechanics to be taught by J. C. Allen of Struthers Wells and Operations Inspections taught by B. R. Budd, Chemical Laboratory Techniques to be taught by J. C. Moore and Production Control will be taught by W. E. Miller.

F. W. Waite, who has served the control staff as commander since its organization, is leaving soon for an extended stay in California and members will take this opportunity of wishing him and his wife a safe and pleasant journey.

The exercise for this month is one drawn up by the Schuylkill county control center, first of a series prepared by county units and submitted to their state center.

Brother Of Warren Girl Lost In War

Friends of Mrs. L. W. Raken-tine, student at Mississippi State College for Women and the former Viola Varga of Warren, will be sorry to learn that her only brother, Cpl. John L. Varga, was killed in action in the North African area on July 22.

From Mrs. Raken-tine, graduate of Warren High School in 1935 and Warren General Hospital in 1938, it is learned that Cpl. Varga enlisted before the entry of this country into the war and had considerable training before being sent overseas. He was seriously wounded April 25 and was hospitalized for 27 days before returning to duty. With his promotion to corporal, he was honored with the award of the Military Order of the Purple Heart. Having been one of the first infantrymen to land with American troops in Africa, he had seen much action before being wounded the first time.

A government letter has confirmed the telegraphed report of his death. He leaves three sisters besides the former Warren girl.

BURIED IN LEAVES

City employees are literally buried in leaves. Due to the extremely dry weather the leaves are falling in huge quantities and the city trucks are doing their best to handle the leaves. However the street and parks departments are both operated short handed and so far have been wholly unable to keep up with the demands made upon them for the removal of the rubbish. Householders who have raked up their leaves along the curbs are finding them scattered far and wide and have had to do their raking job several times.

COMMUNION-BREAKFAST

Sunday morning the members of Warren Council, Knights of Columbus, attended the eight o'clock mass at Holy Redeemer church and received communion in a body. They then assembled at their rooms on Pennsylvania avenue and enjoyed a breakfast. This was followed by a short program, the feature of which was a series of tenor solos by C. Di Giovanni, concert and radio tenor, of Hoboken, N. J. The speaker for the occasion was Attorney John A. Spader, of Erie, who entertained his audience with an interesting and forceful talk on "Americanism" which held the rapt attention of his listeners. The event was in commemoration of Columbus Day, although owing to conditions due to the war it was held two days previous to the day set aside in his memory.

Man Arrested After His Car Hit Another

Michael Kondok, of Starbrick, was arrested at 12:18 this morning on a charge of reckless driving after he had crashed his car into one owned by Robert Mathis, 215 Madison avenue. The Mathis machine was parked on Pennsylvania avenue near the Liberty restaurant when it was hit. Miss Wilma Zwald, an occupant of the car which was struck, sustained an injury to one shoulder that required medical attention. The damage to both cars amounted to about $50, which will be taken care of by Kondok.

A truck driver slammed his machine into one of the parking meters yesterday afternoon and let it protrude fall and then he drove away. He had a bright red truck and a couple of witnesses saw the occurrence, but did not get the license number of the truck.

One drunk who had become so tired he lay down on the sidewalk near the H. and B. Dinor was gathered into the fold and folded away on the slats. This morning he had a chat with Magistrate Greenland.

Civil Air Patrol Hears Talk By Lieutenant James Miller

A large and enthusiastic crowd attended the open meeting of the Civil Air Patrol last evening in the large court room at the court house. Lieutenant James Miller of the Army Air Force spoke of his experiences as an Army Air Force pilot and gave in detail the successive steps in a combat mission.

In opening his remarks Lieutenant Miller spoke of the wonderful country in which we live and how much it is appreciated by the boys who are returning after spending some time in Europe and Africa. He also spoke of the food which was available on active service and explained that the constant use of canned vegetables, meats and other fare became very monotonous. His description of life in the Air Force on active service was graphic and left everyone with a greater appreciation of the work of the army aviators.

Lieutenant Miller explained that while pilots received much attention due to the fact that flying was still a novel experience to the great rank and file, actually piloting an aircraft was no more difficult than operating a motor car and that the crew chiefs and mechanics were the unsung heroes of the Air Forces.

In closing he complimented others for their part in keeping the pilots flying.

Lieutenant Fred Schuler, executive officer of Group 5 of Civil Air Patrol, gave a brief history of the early beginnings of Civil Air Patrol, its growth, and its present duties and obligations.

Lieutenant Jack Cogswell, lately of Civil Air Patrol Coastal Patrol Service, gave a description of the Coastal Patrol Service. Captain Henry O. Walker, communications officer on the staff of the commander of Pennsylvania Wing of Civil Air Patrol, was called upon and he carefully explained the organization of the movement from the national headquarters in New York City, through the Wing Command in Harrisburg, down to the Group Command covering northwestern Pennsylvania, and finally ending with the local squadron based in Warren. Captain Walker also placed emphasis on the Civil Air Patrol Cadets, a junior organization of high school age sponsored by the local CAP Squadron, which offered valuable training to youths prior to induction into the armed forces.

Many Present As Inductees Met At YMCA

The pre-induction party for selectees held last evening at the YMCA had an attendance of about 70, much larger than was anticipated.

Dr. Arnold A. Kippen, of the State Hospital staff, talked to the men and, later, was assisted by Dr. Hilding Bengt, of the same institution, in conducting the information panel. Also assisting were Robert Whitehill, home recently with an honorable discharge from active duty, and YM Secretary Ralph H. Wagner.

Since this group was made up mainly of older men, the discussion of service and family problems was, along more serious lines than usual and well handled by the leaders in charge.

To conclude the evening, women of General Joseph Warren Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, provided and served refreshments.

There are some 10,000 parts in an airplane motor.

WE RECEIVE A COMPLIMENT

In the October 8 issue of the OPA Region-Two News Letter published at 350 Fifth Avenue, New York, comes this praise of the Warren Times-Mirror for its cooperation with the Warren Price Panel: "Congratulations to the Price Panel of Warren, Pennsylvania. Evidence of the fine job which they have been doing has just come into this office. After having reviewed the publicity which they have received in their local newspaper, we can understand why the community has fallen in step with the home front fight against inflation. The local newspaper has done a fine job of reporting the activity of this panel."

And in the War Price and Rationing Board news letter: "The local paper gave strong editorial support to the Price Panel of the Warren County (Pa.) War Price and Rationing Board, which has done an outstanding job in securing community-wide participation in its educational program. Noteworthy is their effective use of the Home Front Pledge to stimulate public interest in the price control program. Churches, clubs, youth organizations, schools and Block Leaders all contributed."

"A series of statements attractively set off with a cut of the Home Front Pledge poster appeared in the paper under the caption: 'They Are Saying About the Home Front Pledge Campaign.' Among those quoted were the superintendent of schools, chairman of the Agriculture War Board, Chief Clerk of the Board, chairman of the Warren County Defense Council and chairman of the Block Leaders."

SINK OR SWIM?

Many casualties in this war have not been in battle or direct contact with the enemy. It is sad, but true, that many are the direct result of lack of knowledge on the part of our soldiers and even sailors to care for themselves in water hazards.

The military services are unable to give training and instruction in swimming on a large scale, due to lack of instructors and facilities for swimming. For this reason the Red Cross has been asked to provide needed training at home.

Special skills and methods are necessary to preserve one's life when involved in accidents at sea. Even strong swimmers may succumb unless trained in ways to live through disasters which occur in sea warfare.

The local Chapter of the American Red Cross is conducting another series of courses in Functional and Basic Swimming, as well as in Life Saving, beginning November 1st. Classes will be held three nights each week. They are open to all qualified persons, 17 or over; both men and women.

Competent instructors are giving freely of their time and experience. Men about to enter the service, others who may soon be called, all are urged to attend these classes and partake of the worth-while instructions. Knowledge gained in these courses may, at some future date, aid in the saving of a life of some Warren County person. Sink or Swim?

SPURS THAT JANGLE

The dress uniforms of the mechanized cavalry includes regulation spurs. With which to cause the tanks and jeeps to gallop, perhaps?

In view of the shortages of both metal and manpower, is it necessary that our mechanized soldiers wear spurs? Or, for that matter, that they have dress uniforms at all, in view of the shortages of much in the way of clothing?

Airmail is setting some new volume records. The boys who fly those planes that pass over Warren daily deserve a lot of praise for their daring and efficient performances.

Only a couple days more to mail that parcel overseas. Be sure the dimensions are right—about the size of a shoe box, and the weight does not exceed five pounds.

"What's Eleanor doing now," asks the Oil City Derrick. Well, according to today's news, she's helping ex-Ambassador Bullitt in his campaign to be elected mayor of Philadelphia.

When Columbus discovered America 451 years ago he thought it was an Asiatic empire—which we have definitely decided it never will be.

It wasn't in the Cards for St. Louis to win the Series this year.

It's just gotta rain some day!

Some People's Idea of Gratitude

Washington In Wartime

By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON—If you want to find a rat who's cheating Uncle Sam these war days, pump a little smoke down the hole and you'll chase out one that lives by cheating the public, too.

That at least is the conclusion of W. H. Woolf, chief of the intelligence unit of the U. S. Treasury. Woolf is one of Treasury Enforcement Agencies Coordinator Elmer L. Irey's boys, and his unit's activities alone are now bringing more than $56,000,000 a year into the Treasury from income tax cheaters, to say nothing of the hundreds of millions saved by snaring the pants off crooks who would be hiding out on Uncle Sam if the Treasury Woolfs weren't so active.

Among some of the choice chasers whose cases have been written off the books in recent months, Woolf lists a card sharp, a couple of blue-sky mining stock operators, a Boston lottery king, a crooked tax adviser and three Japs.

THE gambler was a New Yorker, who, Woolf estimates, counted his annual take in six figures. He's now serving 2½ years—not for gambling, but for failure to give a true and honest account of his take to the Treasury and paying his allotted tax thereon.

The lottery king served a short sentence once before for income tax evasion, but didn't learn. His second offense got him three years. Two Nevada men were the mining stock peddlers who weren't content with sharing their profits with Uncle. In addition to a year apiece, they each drew $20,000 fines.

What Woolf describes as "one of the neatest rackets recently uncovered by the Treasury" was that conducted in Ohio by an income tax "expert." He lured clients into his office, got their signatures on income tax returns, collected the tax payments, then changed the forms to bring in greater exemptions and pocketed the difference between what he paid the collector and what his clients had paid him. One of the slips was listing a $400 minor child exemption for an unmarried school teacher. The judge gave him three years to think that one over.

The Japs, a trio of Joes who operated a restaurant in St. Petersburg, Fla., might not have been caught at all if it hadn't been for Pearl Harbor. When the alien property seizures were made right after that memorable Sunday, they found two sets of books—one in Japanese and one in English. The Jap set showed a profit of $40,000 more than those set up for inspection of their foster Uncle.

IT WILL be noted that with the exception of the Japs, all the worthies in this cross-section were, according to Woolf, playing other games of tag with the law for which they might well have been tapped out. In other words, when nobody else could catch them, the Woolf pack did.

These "pros" in the rackets aren't the only ones who try to cheat the Treasury, of course, but it's surprising how many times criminal action turns up a criminal. Out of 112 criminal indictments filed last year, the intelligence unit got 107 convictions and nearly all of them were operating on the shady side of the street, not in legitimate businesses.

Hollywood Gossip

By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD — Movie stars, about whom thousands of words are written by others, also write about themselves. Each studio where they make a picture asks them to fill out a questionnaire—with sometimes amusing results.

Columbia's files still hold the enlightening confessions of Humphrey Bogart from his "Sahara" sojourn there. Bogie loves to cook, he wrote. He followed this assertion with details on his favorite culinary achievement, Spaghetti Italiane. But when asked about his pet aversions in foods, he wrote: "Spaghetti Italiane."

Glenn Ford—he was there making "Destiny" before joining the Marines—had an answer to a stock question usually left blank by young actors. What did he do during World War I? "I was born," he replied.

ARTHUR LAKE appears to carry his Dagwood role into real life. To "What are your household duties?" he replied: "Paying bills." Larry Simms, the Baby Dumpling of the Blondie series, answered one which most males leave strictly alone: "Do you have any beauty secrets?" To which Larry retorted: "Sure. Cold showers and sun baths."

SIDE GLANCES - By Galbraith

"The motion is to make the office boy a junior partner, thus assuring his continual valuable service."

Our Merchant Marine

The China Trade

Seal and Otter pelts from the West and Northwest Coasts of the Americas were the basis of our early commerce with China.

Twelve great Chinese merchants held the monopoly for trade with "foreign devils," permitted only at Canton. Here furs were exchanged for tea, china, ware and textiles.

The "Empress of China" was the first American vessel to sail direct to China in 1784.

But the first really fast vessel for the China trade was built in 1844 and was named "Houqua" after the favorite Canton merchant. Her first cargo was tea and firecrackers!

Our vessels in the present war carry munitions, tanks, air planes and guns to aid China in her long war against the Japanese.

CREOMULSION for Coughs, Chest Colds, Bronchitis

The World and Warren County

This is one of a series of articles describing the work of the various welfare agencies of Warren County. It is written in connection with the Warren County United War Fund campaign for $88,700. $49,000 of this total (the largest quota in any drive in a quarter of a century) remains in Warren County.

Y. W. C. A.

Among the more noted agencies which have carried on through national and international wars and economic crises is the Young Women's Christian Association, which will receive a deserved share of the Warren County United War Fund.

The International Y. W. C. A., in fact, emerged from a post-war necessity when, at the close of the Crimean War in 1855, many nurses returned home after serving with the British Army and Navy. Out of their need came the "Y. W." and the history of the organization is the history of women at war and at work.

The strength of the Y. W. C. A. is based on its belief in practical Christianity and the practice of it. The purpose of its work is to help each girl achieve her full spiritual and physical potentiality as an individual, as a member of a world Christian fellowship and as an American citizen.

All of us are familiar with the program of the Y. W. C. A. on the Home Front, where it is one of six U. S. O. organizations, continuing and expanding the fine work it has carried on since its birth 88 years ago.

A spotlight shone on the local program of the Y. W. C. A. will reveal, among other services to women, the placing of 109 workers during the past year, through its free employment bureau. One hundred and ninety-one transient guests were accommodated in the Association's residence building and 23 free nights' lodgings were given during the year. Through the good offices of the Y. W. C. A., 29 investigations of rooms for girls were also conducted.

The "Y. W." sponsors the Girl Reserves, an organization which is open to all creeds and races, and whose 300 members in local and other schools include in their activities service projects, arts and crafts, worship services, ceremonies, conferences and hikes, parties, social times, tureen dinners and camps. The objectives for the year were to develop responsibility, clear thinking and leadership for a world at war—and to help plan for the future.

The Educational and Recreational Department of the Y. W. C. A. meets the need for all interests, including classes in sewing, arts and crafts, Spanish, nutrition, gymnasium, basketball, first aid, fencing, knitting, chair-caning, social dancing and many other similar activities.

The two clubs of the Y. W. C. A. in the business and professional department, the Y-Deb and the Ali-We-Je, are continuing their programs along the lines of democracy, religion and a world community, to work on Association projects, War Fund, and world fellowship to the Red Cross and other social service organizations.

The community, as a whole, makes considerable use of the facilities offered. Witness to this is the fact that the attendance at community groups totalled 12,428 and there were 30,938 meals served to the public.

When we reach the goal of $88,700, Warren county's share in the National War Fund, we shall have the satisfaction of knowing that we have aided in the work done by such splendid local agencies as this, as well as those member agencies which are included in the National War Fund.

Canadian Oil Field Project Scored As 'Questionable' By Rep. Gavin In House Speech

Washington, Oct. 13.—(AP)—Rep. Gavin (R-Pa.) said in the house today that if money being spent by the American government to develop a "questionable" Canadian oil field had been spent in the petroleum fields of the United States, American production would be increased "several hundred thousand barrels" daily.

Gavin referred to the Canol project on the MacKenzie river 75 miles south of the Arctic Circle, asserting it had been widely publicized in Canada, including printed maps showing the location of the field and pipelines, but that the war department has refused to make public the terms of the American-Canadian contract on grounds of military secrecy.

"There can be no valid reason for refusal to tell exactly what our war department has contracted to do in this petroleum venture up there near the Arctic Circle," Gavin said.

"The only reason for refusal now to make the matter fully public is the fear of letting the full truth be known—that or a tacit admission that the whole thing is a failure."

He stated the project is costing the American government $138,000,000 and that the total might reach $200,000,000, adding:

"The taxpayer has the right to

He said it had been stated that the project will be financed with American funds, and that "after the war the pipeline and the wells x x x will be turned over jointly to Imperial Oil, Ltd., and the Standard Oil Company of California."

Petroleum Administrator Ickes, the Truman committee and others have at various times described as "impractical," Mr. Gavin said, and asserted 1941 production at Canol was 24,000 barrels of high and low-test gasoline and several grades of oil, which he described as "a drop in the bucket" compared with the annual production in the United States of 1,385,000,000 barrels.

Recommending that the house interstate and foreign committee "cause an immediate investigation of the Canol project," Gavin said the real test of the venture would be the cost of producing oil in the Canadian sub-Arctic compared with production costs in the United States. In Pennsylvania alone, he said, there is "a proven area that has a billion barrels of oil waiting to be drawn from the reluctant sanos."

Pile up Dead Leaves to Make Garden Humus

A Completed Compost Heap.

While decay of a compost pile proceeds slowly in cold weather, the quantity of material available for rotting down into garden humus is at its peak in the fall, when dead leaves accumulate.

Burning leaves is a waste, but the twice often given to spade them to the garden soil is not sound. Leaves from many trees decay so slowly that spring will find them still intact, and if many have been worked into the soil they will be a nuisance all summer long without meeting the crops.

So a compost heap, begun in the fall by piling up dead leaves, offers a best solution. It can be added in the spring and summer, with new clippings and plant debris, and a next fall should provide humus of a quality which will be an unexcelled blessing to your garden.

Set aside a suitable location, out of the way, and preferably screened from view, or a fence; 10 x 10 feet would be an average size. Clean off vegetation, and harden the surface soil by rolling. Pile evenly over this area all dead leaves and other waste plant and even animal material, from your garden, and from kitchen wastes. But carefully exclude, if you would avoid trouble, all wood, branches, twigs and metal objects. When the layer, well tramped down, is six inches thick, sprinkle it with Victory garden fertilizer mixture, about one ounce to a square yard. Wood ashes and lime-stone are also beneficial, each in three or more times this quantity. Then wet it down.

Build up the heap, layer by layer, with similar applications between the layers; and keep it moist. If bad odors develop an inch of soil thrown on top of the pile will prevent them. When the pile is as high as you can conveniently manage, cover the top with soil and let it stand until you are ready to dig the humus into the garden. Start a new one to take care of current accumulations. Such compost piles, consistently maintained, should provide your garden with all the humus required for good condition.

Mental Hygiene In Wartime Theme of Talk Before BPW

Dr. Earl Biddle, psychiatrist on the Warren State Hospital staff, was guest speaker for the October meeting of Business and Professional Women held last evening at the YWCA.

His talk dealt with mental hygiene problems arising out of adjustments that must be made during and after wartime; the building of morale and development of the individual; and interpreted the administration policies as efforts to get complete control of the people by offering them something for nothing.

The address followed dinner served at a long table done in Halloween appointments. After extending a welcome to the several guests, President Louise Neely conducted a business session. Several projects were voted, including annual participation in the garment collection of the Needlework Guild, continuation of the club's membership in the Children's Aid Society and of assistance in Red Cross work at Camp Reynolds and Deshon Hospital in Butler.

Four new members were voted into the club, Miss Lindmark, Martha Lupold, Mrs. J. R. Allen and Dorothy E. Baker. Routine reports were presented by Elizabeth Brasington, Inez Leake, Eunice Alexander and Ellen Thoreson. Violet Peterson accepted responsibility for securing members to sell War Stamps and Bonds at the theatres next week and Katherine Bauer reported shipment of approximately 30,000 pieces of costume jewelry in the "Doodads for Defense" salvage project.

Members were asked to bring old records to the next meeting; also their articles for the Needlework Guild collection. It was voted to dispense with the custom of having "key sisters" for the duration, such gifts to go to wartime and public efforts.

On the committee for this month were Margaret Horan, Mrs. Nora Eaton, Elizabeth Brasington and Mildred Van Sickle, the latter introducing Dr. Biddle to the group.

Forest Fires Quickly Quenched By Use of New Dep't Truck

Men of the Department of Forests and Waters who last summer constructed a truck with a booster tank and hose for use in fighting forest fires now claim the truck is worth its weight in gold. Under the setup in the local office a dispatcher is constantly on the telephone and as reports of fires come in the truck and crew is sent out, the warden notified and when the truck arrives men are on the job ready for battle.

Yesterday the pump house on the Beatty lease on Morrison Run caught fire in some manner and burned down. It set fire to the woods and burned over about an acre before the fighters got it stopped. There was also a fire on York Hill which was quickly reported and the crew caught it promptly. Another raged over 50 acres near the Corry Country Club, in Richland township, Crawford county, another fire was reported. This was 600 feet wide and a half mile long. It is still burning in the ground but not spreading.

Rain is badly needed and the forestry employees are watching the smallest clouds hopeful that some rain will fall.

Ask Widening Of Route 6 Through State

State Senator L. E. Chapman has written to Secretary of Highways Schroyer asking that the widening of Route 6 through the state of Pennsylvania be put on the highway program. Route 6 is the only highway that reaches from coast to coast and is a most important artery. In several places it has been widened to three car widths but in other places there are bad curves and old blacktop which make dangerous driving.

Sec. Schroyer recently announced a number of post war highway construction projects but Route 6 was ignored. Senator Chapman has been a strong advocate of making Route 6 a part of the proposed National Highway from coast to coast. This highway as planned would be a six lane affair with three lanes on each side of a boulevard.

The Roosevelt Highway Association has been working hard for the building of Route 6 into a National Pike and newspapers along the route will have to back Senator Chapman's proposal to the limit to get results.

Flyer Wants Men Enlist Radio-Camera In Guard On For Christmas Drill Night

Say, do you have a small portable radio that is operated on direct current or do you have a small folding camera? Now if you have either of those articles and will sell them for the benefit of a flying man who is flying in one of the big bombers that is doing so much to get Hitler out of the war would love to have them. He is one of the men who shuttles from England to Africa and back again "laying eggs" as he goes and comes.

Relatives here in correspondence with him have asked what he wants for Christmas and he has asked for those two things in a letter mailed last Friday from Africa. So if you have either of the articles he has asked for won't you call Miss Florence Kennett this evening at 2992-Russell. You know the gifts have to be in the mail by Friday evening! And wouldn't you feel great to know you have added to the pleasure of one of those fellows flying on important missions?

Co. B of the Pennsylvania State Guards held its regular drill meeting Tuesday at the State Armory. The drill was unusually interesting in that the men were taught the use of the hand grenade, and in addition were trained how to handle domestic disturbances. Capt. Arthur P. Dickinson, commanding officer, again read the Articles of War to the men so as to impress upon them the seriousness of the duties the guardsmen have undertaken and the importance of the work.

New enlistments for the past week include: J. Pearl Hucklebone, of Irvine; Ben Frampton Huckabone, of RD 3, Warren, and John Edward Colter, of Warren.

The next drill night of the Guards will be Tuesday, October 19, at 7 p. m. It is contemplated that the guardsmen will be then taught the basic principles of the sub-machine gun and will also be given a course on map reading.

Prisoner Of Germans Is In Good Health

Mr. and Mrs. Alva Seymour, 127 Russell street, have just had two communications from their son, Sgt. Harold L. Seymour, taken prisoner by the Germans February 1 and still interned in a concentration camp by that power.

In a card written May 15 and a letter dated June 27, Sgt. Seymour reports that he is in fine health and doing nicely and that there is no cause for his parents or friends to worry. He writes that he has had no mail from home in five months but hopes to receive some soon.

Activities at the camp have included a well attended church service, an entertainment staged by boys interned in the camp and opening of a library which will provide reading materials.

He reports receiving a gift of a shirt from the Red Cross, also a weekly box of food and other supplies from that organization.

The Times-Mirror extends to his many friends at his request a cheerful "hello, and don't worry about me."

PANEL MEETS THURSDAY

Plans for another survey of prices in Warren county food stores will be completed when Warren County Price Panel Assistants meet Thursday afternoon of this week at 2 o'clock in Room 511 of the Warren National Bank building. This will be a very important meeting, according to the Panel Chairman, since this is the first get-together since June. There are a number of matters to be taken up. Every Panel Assistant is urged to be present Thursday afternoon.

WORK ABOUT COMPLETE

Work of repairing two of the piers of the Hickory street bridge is about complete. In fact, according to schedule the work was to have been finished yesterday. Much of the machinery used on the job has been loaded and hauled away while the big float will be dismantled and shipped away. The work has occupied the major portion of the summer as the float was built and launched early in the spring. The low stage of the river has greatly facilitated the work and saved the company much pumping of water which would have been necessary had the river been at the usual stage.

Over Three Hundred Hear Speakers at Eagles Ceremony

An enthusiastic audience of 313 local and visiting Eagles heard a stirring patriotic message from Charles C. Guenther, of Pittsburgh, at a meeting of 313 Coneywango Aerie, on Sunday, Oct. 10, at 2 p. m.

"The MUST that we as Eagles and as Americans face in the winning of the war," declared Mr. Guenther, "While our fraternal work is close to our hearts and our own personal affairs are important to each of us, we must not overlook for the fraction of a second that the world is involved in 'total war' and that we must all do our bit."

"Eagles are doing their bit. Thirty thousand of our members are already in the service. Thousands more are ready to follow. Hundreds of thousands of us are in factories forging the weapons with which our boys will fight and overwhelm the enemy. Our women are busy putting up Victory packages for our boys. Subordinate units are busy forming blood donor clubs, organizing first aid units, co-operating with civilian defense agencies and service organizations, and launching drives to boost war bond sales in their communities.

Our Aeries have already invested $7,000,000 in war bonds, and they expect to double that amount by the end of the year. Indeed, Eagle purchases—by Aeries and by individuals through the 10 per cent club—are estimated at $7,000,000 a month.

"George Washington himself gave us the formula for victory many, many years ago. During the Revolutionary War, Washington, while riding along a country road in New York, passed a thriving field of corn where three boys were busy at work. The Father of Our Country remarked about the well-kept farmhouse in the distance, the fertile fields, the mended fences. One boy threw his shoulders back, flung up his head proudly, and said: 'Father's fighting, we're digging, and mother's praying.' Fighting, digging and praying! exclaimed Washington. That's the patriotism that will bring the country out of her distress."

"Across the years George Washington is saying to us: 'Fight, dig and pray.' Our boys in uniform are fighting, and fighting gallantly. It is for us at home to dig and pray."

Speakers from Erie, Kane and Meadville were also heard. The Kane degree team put on the inlatory work.

The guest of honor was entertained at dinner after the meeting. In charge of the arrangements for the highly successful affair were the following local leaders: M. Frank Masterson, Samuel Armstrong, Jerome Parks, Martin Skistrom, Ray Fitzgerald, Theodore Speciman, Arthur Lingo and H. L. Peterson.

In the Wake of MURDER

By ADELINE McELFRESH

Chapter 21

BIG Jim Thompson was barking into a telephone when Brad entered his office. He gestured for Brad to answer another, never breaking his conversation with the state ranger headquarters.

Brad said "Hello" and listened intently as the local ranger gave crisp orders. "Right," he said then. "The chief is talking with headquarters. Now, I think they are sending a plane to look the situation over."

He hung up then after promising to have Thompson call if he had anything to report.

"How does it look?" he asked when the chief cradled his phone.

"Bad. Damned bad. What few reports I've had say it's gaining headway fast."

Brad wondered where Johnny Reynolds was, if he had found out anything in Emerson. If he had, it would be impossible to get hold of him now. The wires had been down for over half an hour and the town couldn't be reached without detouring for miles around the fire. Emerson was beginning to look like a hot spot—in more ways than one.

Things were beginning to take shape in Brad's mind and, if he could catch Thompson off the telephone for a few minutes straight, they would shape up even better. There were certain bits of information that the police chief could pigeon-hole in their proper slots.

"I'm going out there, Brad," the chief said as he hung up. "Want to come along?"

"You bet," Brad jammed his hat more securely on his head. "I've got to talk to you anyhow. Maybe you can supply a few of the answers."

They hurried out to the chief's car after Big Jim had instructed the radio operator to get in touch with him by wireless if he was needed back in town. Then, siren screeching, he maneuvered the car into the line of traffic.

TRUCKS loaded with soldiers from a nearby training camp were rolling toward the trouble zone with axes, shovels, and long coils of hose. Those men, Brad thought as the chief passed a few of the trucks, might not be experienced firefighters but they would save the day if it could be saved at all.

Two state policemen waved their car to a halt a good mile from the blaze. Brad could hear the dull roar, pierced by an occasional shout.

"Better leave your car here," was the suggestion, and Brad and the police chief got out.

They watched the troop trucks roll ahead. Others were coming back empty, headed for town or the camp to pick up more supplies and men. The army had arrived. The fight was on.

Brad and Thompson set out at a dog trot toward the scene of action. Other volunteers were straggling along, too, for the fire was life and death to all of them. Either they saved Centralia and their homes—or they didn't. Right now prospects were none too bright.

Smoke, acrid with the smell of burning pine, cut at Brad's throat and nose. He fought at inhaling it, but nothing else could be done. The air was heavy with it.

A doe, her soft eyes wide with fright, poised for a moment at the roadside, her flanks heaving, then fled. Smaller animals were more numerous. Rabbits skittered wildly through the brush. Birds were overhead, their excited cries mingling pitifully with the growing roar of the fire.

Thank God Jane's safe, Brad thought.

BUT Jane was far from safe. Finding Ella Black crumpled in the hall was a shock—but seeing the deep wound on the side of her head was a worse one. Aunt Ella was badly injured.

Jane darted into the bathroom, returning with a wet towel which she pressed against the bleeding cut. Mrs. Black groaned.

"There, there, darling," Jane soothed. "You'll be all right."

Changing the cold wet towels was taking up precious minutes. The fire was very near. Jane could hear the sickening crackle of the flames that pyramided high into the night sky. She realized, as fingers of fear traced a horrible pattern through her mind, that she must get her aunt out of there immediately.

But how? Could she get her to the car? What Ella wasn't a large woman but she was decidedly on the plump side and Jane's 120 pounds seemed slight beside her. The blood had almost stopped now. Jane hurried back to the bathroom and dampened three or four of the towels. It would be best to have them if the bleeding started again.

"This is going to hurt, Aunt Ella," she said, kneeling beside the inert figure.

Mrs. Black only nodded. When Jane lifted her, she groaned once and fainted. At least she wouldn't know the pain of being half-carried, half-dragged downstairs to the car. To Jane that was a comforting knowledge.

Somehow, Jane never exactly knew how she managed to reach the car and get her aunt onto the back seat. Then, weak from the exertion, she collapsed on the running board.

A moment later she jumped up. Already the flames were leaping from tree to tree at the edge of the clearing. Long red tongues reached out hungrily.

Panic struck at Jane's heart. To be trapped... She fought off the nausea that dulled her senses for a moment. Exertion had sapped her strength, left her with nothing but a fighting spirit.

The starter pumped like a kitten. The engine caught, and Jane stepped hard on the accelerator. No time now to drive easily, sparing the woman on the back seat. If they were trapped, nothing mattered.

AHEAD, Jane could see the fire arching over the highway to turn the pines on the other side into flaming torches.

"I'll never make it," she thought frantically. Oh, Brad!

But Brad wasn't here. He couldn't help her now. She had no one to depend on but herself. If she and Aunt Ella died, they would die alone and nothing that Brad—or anyone else was doing now mattered.

Nothing mattered but that angry red wall ahead.

Jane fought for a breath of smoke-free air, but there was none. She stepped on the gas. Lucretia Eddy's battered maroon sedan leaped ahead like a gallant thoroughbred. Jane felt her hands tighten on the wheel. Her throat felt hot and dry as the car plunged directly at that wall of flame.

It was now or never!

Too late, she heard the ominous crack and saw the swift tree swaying. It was going to fall directly across her path.

Chapter 22

THE tree wavered, fiery branches dropping on the highway. Jane pressed the accelerator against the floor boards. Then the tree was falling...

For the split second that it took for the car to plunge across the danger area, Jane was conscious of nothing except the tongues of flame that licked red, raw holes in the night. Then slowly, almost painfully, she realized that they had escaped the falling torch by the width of a bumper.

Sparks flew against the car and bounced off like tiny stars to fade into the reddish glow that was like a horribly modernist painting.

But they were safe.

The fire might be lashing at their heels but they had escaped it. In the blessed relief that flooded her veins, Jane wondered if Aunt Ella had regained consciousness. Poor soul... What could have happened to her? Had she fallen, striking her head against the hall table?

Jane had noticed no blood on it but, then, there had been no room in her thoughts for anything but the urgent need to flee.

She drove half a mile further down the lonely road before she felt it was safe to stop and check on her aunt's condition. The fire was well behind them now.

Mrs. Black was still unconscious. Jane felt the head wound gingerly. There was very little blood now but she applied a wet towel.

In the distance she could hear shouts of the firefighters. Their words were unintelligible, mingled as they were with the roar that was much like that of a heavily loaded freight train pulling a long grade, but there was an urgency about them that stirred Jane's heart. Those men were fighting a grim and relentless enemy, an enemy who knew no quarter.

Was Brad out there with them? Jane wondered, perhaps praying a little that he was.

Or had he released her at her apartment in order to flee the district? Had the fire completed its mission here?

RESOLUTELY, she pushed the question aside. She couldn't—she wouldn't—think of them

now. There was no time. Aunt Ella must have medical attention in a hurry. Jane slid behind the wheel and gave the starter a vicious kick that worked off some of her anger against Brad for not taking her into his confidence.

After all, he could trust her. He should have known that. If he is a government agent, the six words were emblazoned on her mind like a front-page streamer.

"You are a fool, Jane Carter," she announced, amazed that her voice sounded just the same despite the terror she had known in the last twenty minutes.

In the meantime, Brad, working side by side with a brawny army sergeant, felt that they were fighting a losing battle.

The flames were leaping from tree-top to tree-top like energetic monkeys and creeping like fiery, treacherous little snakes across the pine needles that carpeted the forest. Nothing seemed to stop it—or even to hinder the rapid spread. A stiff wind was blowing the fire hard ahead, threatening to toss it across the wide avenue that was being cleared well to the front of the advancing fire line.

Brad swung his ax again and again, chopping out the underbrush that would be like so much kindling to the flame. His hands were out and bleeding, his clothing was ripped to shreds. His shoulders ached as every muscle protested the unusual exertion.

There had been nothing in his Secret Service training to prepare him for this, he realized grimly. The big sergeant, his Irish face wet with sweat despite the bitter December cold, was working methodically—swing, strike, toss the brush back to be carried away, swing, strike...

THE saw mill was silent for the first time in many months as the men from the owl shift joined in the fight. Could they save the irreplaceable machinery? The finished lumber that would be invaluable in war work?

It had to be saved, Brad told himself as the ax bit into another bush.

Cross-cut saws eating systematically through tree trunks. Every few seconds a tree would crash earthward, men would fall upon it like ants on a piece of sugar, and soon it would be carted off and the clearing would be wider.

Two men whom Brad recognized as Red Cross workers from Centralia were coming down the line of sweating, swearing men, handing out cups of water. For the first time, Brad was aware of his dry lips, his parched throat.

He extended one grimy hand for the cup without a word and drained it. Never had champagne tasted better. Mopping sweat from his forehead with the back of his hand, he swung the ax again, picking up the old rhythm.

"How're we doin', Sarge?" he asked after a while.

The soldier shook his head. He didn't miss a stroke.

"Look 'bad," he replied. "Pine burns quick."

You're telling me, Brad thought. Aloud he said: "If the wind would change..."

"Yeah," the sergeant grunted. "We'd have a chance then."

Reinforcements were arriving. Brad could hear the trucks roll up, discharge their loads, and roar away again.

Up and down the line, men were beginning to drop out for brief rest periods and newcomers were taking their places.

And the flames were licking closer and closer, eating their way relentlessly ahead.

The men worked frantically the full length of the line. That avenue must be wider. So wide that the wind would not carry the flames across it.

BUT was it possible? Brad was beginning to doubt it. With that wind whipping from the northwest as it was, success seemed farther away than ever.

Two hours had taken a heavy toll from all of them. Brad straightened for a moment, easing some of the strain across his shoulders.

An exclamation from the husky sergeant caught his attention.

"Hey, look!" Sarge shouted above the clamor.

Brad saw the man just as he fell directly in the path of the flames. With a hoarse cry, he sprang forward.

Vaguely he heard the sergeant yell, "Come back here! There's not a chance!" but he lunged ahead. He had to reach that man before the fire did.

Notre Dame's Running Ace in Action

(NEA Telephoto) Fleet-footed Creighton Miller, Notre Dame's two-touchdown running ace of the game with Michigan at Ann Arbor, is pictured as he made a first down around his own left end. Good blocking by Mello and Limont conveyed him past the line of scrimmage (heavy white line), but Michigan's Daley infiltrated from the rear and is seen just before downing the Notre Dame halfback. The powerful Irish team upset pre-game dope and maintained its undefeated record by pasting the Wolverines 35-12.

Notre Dame In First Place In Year's Second Weekly Poll

BY HAROLD CLAASSEN
New York, Oct. 13.—Ninety-nine of the nation's football writers agree with Coach Fritz Crisler of Michigan that Coach Frank Leahy of Notre Dame was enjoying a bit of under-statement when he termed his present team as only "fair".

The scribes, voting in the Associated Press' second weekly poll of 1943, rated Notre Dame as the best team in the country with 86 of the writers unhesitatingly marking them as No. 1. None ranked them lower than third.

Crisler, who had a disheartening side line study of the Irish Saturday, was quoted at Ann Arbor as saying "that it is by far the best Notre Dame team I have ever seen."

Notre Dame, triumphant by a 35 to 12 score over the Wolverines, collected only half of the first place votes in the inaugural poll last week but skyrocketed to 87 per cent this week after trouncing the tabulation's erstwhile second team.

Michigan, second last week, skidded to ninth place in the present voting with army taking over the runner-up slot and Navy third.

Pennsylvania, Purdue, Duke, Iowa, Pre-Flight and Southern California all ranked above the Wolverines and College of the Pacific grabbed the tenth rung.

The far westerners, coached by Amos Alonzo Stagg, displaced Minnesota in the top ten.

McCarthy Says Championship Spirit Is Factor In Success

BY JUDSON BAILEY
New York, Oct. 13.—(AP)—This is a story about why the New York Yankees have won seven American League pennants and six world championships of baseball in the last eight years.

It also is a story about Joseph Vincent McCarthy, the truculent, 56-year-old Irishman who is the manager of the Yankees and the only man I ever knew whose mouth turned down at the corners when he laughed.

Coming back on the train from St. Louis where the Yankees had just finished trampling on the Cardinals, McCarthy was sitting up late at night with newspapermen in a diner.

"You'd think I would be able to sleep tonight," Joe said, "but I can't. Now that the pressure is off I just want to sit here and relax."

Someone passing from one group of celebrants to another stopped to congratulate McCarthy and told him he had done a great job with a bad ball club.

The hot Irish temper, always close to the surface, flushed up in McCarthy and he retorted in a bristling voice, "who says it is a bad ball club? I never said it was. 'I'll tell you something,' he continued, his tone mellowing as quickly as it had hardened. 'I know at Asbury Park last spring that this ball club would win the pennant.'"

"I knew it, and I'll tell you why. It had the championship spirit. That's what wins pennants."

"You can look at a player and tell if he's a champion. If he is then it doesn't make a lot of difference about his batting average, or about his making errors now and then. If he's champion he'll win for you."

"I've got championship players on this ball club."

There is McCarthy's formula for victory. It is only complete, however, when you add that the manager himself has the championship spirit more intensely than any of his players.

DRAGONS SCORE TWICE IN FIRST FOR VICTORY

Falconer High School's injury laden grid outfit played the Warren High School Dragons on Russell Field yesterday and the Blue and White clan of Coach J. B. Leidig emerged with a hard-fought 26 to 13 victory.

Playing their second mid-week tussle of the year against the Cameronmen, the locals relied heavily on their passing attack to lay one more game in the win column.

Warren made two touchdowns in the first quarter. Carlson threw a pass to McLean and then Carlson plunged for the extra point. On the second touchdown of the quarter Snyder went through guard. The try for the extra point failed.

Early in the second quarter Falconer made it 13 to 6 by going over from the eight-yard line.

Late in the second period, Warren's ground assault grew in proximity as they tore open the lighter enemy line with savage thrusts and paved the way to their third touchdown in the same session making the score at half-time 19 to 6.

Playing nine-minute quarters, each team battled on even terms in the third, and although the Falcons drove to the 11 yard stripe, they were stopped cold and Jim Snyder booted out of danger ending the stanza.

Showing all of that for years has been their label, the charges of Cam Cameron started an attack after an intercepted pass thrown by George Lucia was taken by Falconer's Ken Johnson on the Falcon's 39 and reached back to the Warren 30 yard mark before being downed.

Opening up with their aerial works, the Falcons drove to the local's 1 yard line with Petersen shelling the passes, but couldn't drive through the line and another pass put them over the goal on third down after being shoved back two yards on two successive line plunges. They converted to make it 19 to 13.

Trying desperately to ward off fumbles, in fear of Falconer regaining the ball in the final five minutes of play, the Dragons opened up their ground assault again, with Carlson and Snyder doing the gaining, as the former ripped off 14 yards through right guard from the Falconer 30 to the 44 and then Carlson uncorked a 30 yard aerial to Adams, who took from the Falconer 36 over to the right side of the field for Warren's fourth touchdown. McLean plunged for the point and most of the fight left the Falcons with one minute to go and the score at 26 to 13.

Outstanding in the backfield were Jim Snyder and Carlson, while Beyer, McLean and Striani held the spotlight on the line.

Finschafen had killed 400 Japanese.

Other Allied air blows reported in the communiqué included strikes in the Solomons against concentrations of barges around Choiseul. It was to Choiseul that the Japanese managed to evacuate some of their troops through a sea-air blockade from the central Solomons. Those Japanese now may be trying to get out of Choiseul by barge to Bougainville. Gun positions on South Bougainville also were raided.

RELIGIOUS CONVENTION
Huntingdon, Oct. 13—(P)—More than 1,000 delegates registered today for the 81st annual convention of the Pennsylvania Sabbath School Association—first to be held here since 1894. Innocent Plea Made By Mercer Woman

Mercer, Oct. 13—(P)—Blonde Janice Graham, 20-year-old farm girl, pleaded innocent at her arraignment today on charges of being an accessory after the fact and accomplice in the slaying of the Everett Wilson dairy farm.

She waived a hearing for her appearance at the December term of criminal court and was held without bond.

The information read by District Attorney Edwin C. Moon before Justice of the Peace Thomas McClain charged the girl "aided, abetted and counseled" William Albert Morell, 20-year-old farmhand, who has pleaded guilty to charges of murder.

The girl, accompanied by her father, broke down and cried when returned to jail.

Eighth Army Advances On Entire Front

with British and American artillery of the Fifth Army hurling hundreds of shells across the flooded stream.

The Nazis are reported to have brought up strong artillery units also and front dispatches indicated their lines on the river's north bank are being strengthened against Lt.-Gen. Mark W. Clark's expected assault.

There was no report of any fresh gains anywhere along the Volturno front, and nothing to indicate whether Allied patrols were succeeding in penetrating to the north bank to test the enemy's strength.

The break-through on the central front which brought new threats of eventual flanking movements from the east against the Volturno line, also resulted in capture of the towns of Cercello, Colle and Celpagano.

On the Eighth army front from the Adriatic south to the mountainous backbone of central Italy, Allied gains were general, while enemy opposition was uneven. At some points, British patrols forged ahead against only mild resistance, but the Germans fought back desperately elsewhere.

Possibility that the Germans are rushing heavy reinforcements to the Adriatic battlefield was seen in an air force announcement that Allied fighter-bombers had scored many hits on a train loaded with motor transports on the rail line between Pescara and Ternoli.

Light bombers hammered road junctions around Vasto, 18 miles above Ternoli, yesterday, and fighter-bombers struck at enemy gun positions and trains in the Ternoli area.

Night-flying fleets also blasted at railroad bridges and yards at Civitavecchia 40 miles northwest of Rome.

No Allied planes were lost.

FAVORS SALES TAX
Harrisburg, Oct. 13—(P)—Enactment of a federal sales tax was sought today by the Pennsylvania State Chamber of Commerce which said new revenue "must be found which will deal directly with the inflationary problems arising from the excess of consumer purchasing power." In a statement, the Chamber declared, "the tax would act to lessen the available purchasing power of consumers."

Navy's Cargo Planes Drink Deeply

Badoglio Promises Active Cooperation To United Nations

to afford to the United Nations cause."

Badoglio advised Eisenhower that he took "great pleasure" in informing the general that the Italian king had declared war on Nazi Germany and that the declaration would be handed by the Italian ambassador in Madrid to the German ambassador at 3 p. m. (German time) today.

The marshal asked Eisenhower to communicate the information to United Nations governments and to advise the Italian embassies in Ankara and Buenos Aires, and the legations in Bern, Stockholm, Dublin and Lisbon.

In his proclamation to all Italians, Badoglio recalled that when the armistice was signed, his government ordered Italian troops to remain with their arms at rest but prepared to repel any act of violence from any source.

Roosevelt, Churchill and Stalin also spoke of "brutal maltreatment by the Germans of the Italian population," which, coupled with military events since September 8, culminated in Italy's declaration of war.

AMENDMENTS COME UP FOR VOTE THIS FALL

Harrisburg, Oct. 13—(P)—Pennsylvania voters on Nov. 2 will decide whether the state constitution should be amended to provide what the local government commission describes as a more uniform and systematic method of determining election districts.

The proposed amendment, backed by the commission, would remove the power of county courts to fix election district boundaries and give the legislature authority to say how districts should be determined.

The 1942 and 1943 legislative sessions approved the bill calling for the amendment, as required by law.

NOTICE

"Pulpwood cutting has recently been listed as an essential occupation and those engaged in it should now include such activities in connection with any application for supplementary gasoline, tires, or automotive rationing.

"If you are using gasoline-powered equipment in sawing, drawing or trucking pulpwood and it is absolutely necessary for you to have an additional allowance, you should report the fact to your local rationing board, giving full information as to the number of cords to be cut and the distance it must be trucked.

"Ceiling prices for pulpwood have been set by this office and are available upon application to your nearest OPA District Office. There is no present intention of revising these prices."

PROCLAMATION

by
Governor Edward Martin

In calling attention to a serious shortage of pulpwood and devoting their organized efforts to increase production, the newspapers of our Nation are performing a valuable public service.

Pulpwood is vital to the progress of the war because of its widespread use in smokeless powder, paper-board containers for shells, food and ammunition for our fighting forces, blood plasma kits, rayon and paper parachutes and many other war essentials.

Official figures indicate a shortage of 2,500,000 cords under the minimum of 13,000,000 cords needed for war and essential civilian requirements for 1943. This is a matter of deep concern. I ask all citizens to aid the newspapers in their campaign to increase production and I appeal especially to all woodland farmers and woodcutters in Pennsylvania to enlist in the Victory Pulpwood Drive and to devote at least three extra days to cutting pulpwood this fall.

Tuxedo Located After Hunt But Corah Didn't Use It

Guadalcanal—(Delayed)—Private First Class Edward M. Corah, former summer-theater actor, now serving in a U. S. Marine mortar platoon, nearly acquired the unique distinction of being the only man ever to wear a tuxedo on this primitive jungle island.

Pfc. Corah, son of Mrs. Mary M. Corah, of 304 Union street, Warren, Pennsylvania, was master of ceremonies at an amateur revue staged by his unit on an improvised theater in a jungle clearing. Several days prior to the show, a search was made throughout the island for a tuxedo. The Air Corps, the Navy, the Sea Bees and finally the Army were tried, and actually found deep in the bottom of an officer's trunk.

But the vagaries of the theater and the people who write scripts stepped in at this point. Last-minute script changes called for Corah's wearing summer khaki trousers and shirt rather than the long-hunted tuxedo.

"Blame it on the man behind the scenes," Corah said. "My officers came through with the 'tux,' and I was ready to go into Ripley's Hall of Fame, but a script's a script, come hell or high water!"

The 27-year-old former actor, who has appeared on the same stage with Tallulah Bankhead, the late George M. Ration Board Announces Rule On Tires

More news on the tire shortage. Many motorists making applications for new tires and after considerable delay, receiving certificates for second-hand tires are contacting the Board in the effort to convince the Board either that their needs are of sufficient importance to warrant new tires or they are unable to obtain second-hand tires or the second-hand tires they could obtain would not answer the purpose.

The Local Ration Board and everyone connected with it wishes to announce to everyone in Warren County this condition is thoroughly understood, but nothing can be done.

The tire situation of every applicant is known by the Board before any decision is made, so nothing can be gained by attempting to impress the Board by individual needs. The fact of the matter is the shortage of new and second-hand tires is increasing at the same time tires in use have been wearing out. Many cars laid up because of shortage of tires are not going to be put back in service regardless of the need for them.

In such a situation, the need is carefully balanced at the Board with the supply. The need cannot create what does not exist. Rationing can only attempt to give to those who have the greatest need that which already exists.

So don't call us, write us, or waylay us.

Evidence: Amendment No. 52 sets the minimum mileage requirement for a new tire at 601 miles per month. Until a few days ago any motorist with occupational mileage of 240 miles per month was eligible to make application for a new tire.

The only partial answer is: save the tires you now have by reducing speed, mileage, and tire abuse.

To motorists interested in obtaining their new A books in use November 9th, there were recently two items in the Pittsburgh Post-Gazette of considerable interest.

The item under an Oil City date-line indicated the Oil City Ration Board completed their plans for renewing A books and their plans called for all renewal applications being in before a deadline set for October 15th.

That is strictly a Local Board ruling and does not affect the plans already made by your Local Board and in operation for sometime. Applications will continue to be processed as received, whenever received, without any deadline.

The item under a Pittsburgh date-line revealed the many errors in the new A book applications. Simple errors in copying the serial numbers. Serial numbers on the application different from numbers certified by official tire inspectors with no tire purchase certificate to account for it.

Your board is concerned by this same situation for on day recently, more than half of the applications received were returned with a note stating corrections would have to be made before renewal would be granted.

Your Board warns you to follow

"Naturally, I don't know when the war will end..."

"The sooner the better, is all I can say. But I know that until it ends, you and I have a duty to your car that gets more important every day..."

EVERY CAR that still runs is an essential cog in the country's whole transportation scheme. As the older cars quit, the ones still left get more and more essential.

"I'm not making scare-talk when I say that even standing in a garage most of the time, your car gets run down. Metals corrode. Oil gets dirty and sludgy. Grease dries out. The battery runs down. Spark plugs get fouled up. Radiator hose connections go bad. Tires get soft, so the sidewalls bend and crack.

"In these times, it's a crime to let this happen. Because you don't have to! Almost anyone's car can see him through, if he'll give it a chance.

"We're still here with everything it takes to help protect your car, whatever make it is. You find us short-handed sometimes, but we're long on experience and good equipment and reliable Esso products.

"However little you drive, you need winter oil and a winter grease job. Your battery fit and strong.

Your radiator tight and ready with anti-freeze. Your tires checked over, maybe switched around to get the most out of them. This is mighty important right now—to keep your car in service for the duration. Come on in. Right this week. Winter's getting close!"

County Board Of Assistance Holds Meeting

The Warren County Board of Assistance announced that at their last meeting, Mrs. Marie Carlson, one of their stenographers, applied for a military leave of absence as she had joined the WACs and expected to be called for service soon. The leave was granted with the best wishes of the county board and their congratulations on her acceptance into her country's armed forces. Due to the dropping case load, her position will not be filled.

As of October 11, 1943, there are 396 cases receiving public assistance through the local office; of these 271 are receiving old age assistance—people over 65 years of age who have no other means of support; 77 people are receiving blind pensions—people over 21 years of age whose vision does not exceed 100-200th of normal; 26 cases receiving aid to dependent children—children who are under 18 years, going to school and who, through the incapacity of one or both parents, need help; and 22 cases receiving general assistance—the needy in the county who do not fit in any of the other categories.

The board also announces that there is no one on assistance under 65 years of age who is eligible and that there has not been for eighteen months.

In October, 1941, the case load was 713 and the employees 17 and today the case load is 396, employees 8, a drop of 43% in case load and 53% in employees.

The present board—which serves without any remuneration, consists of: The Rev. J. C. Wygant, chairman; Mrs. Emma Christman, vice chairman; C. H. Whitaker, secretary; Mrs. Kathryn Frantz, Floyd G. Carter, Frederick A. Shaw and Raymond Morrison.

Rationing boards in some nearby towns have announced that persons who are reported to be exceeding the 35-mile speed limit will have difficulty in obtaining gasoline or tires from the board.
